THE PARAGUAY EXPEDITION.

Interesting Intelligence from Paraguay.

The Conclusion of the Treaty Between Paraguay and the United States.

Letters of Urquiza Concerning the Mediation.

Rumored Mediation of Urquiza Between Paraguay and Brazil—General Intelligence from our Squadron.

By the arrival of the Orchilla at this port on Saturday last, we are in receipt of our correspondence and other intelligence from Buenos Ayres to the 21st of February. The letters and documents which we publish below give interesting details concerning the progress of the negotiations with Paraguay, and confirm the previous rumor that the difficulty had been settled through the intervention of General URQUIZA. Concerning the specific provisions of the treaty nothing definite is known; it is stated, however, that the claim of the Navigation Company against the Government of President LOPEZ has been referred to a Commission, composed of D'AMARAL, the Brazilian Minister, and General GUIDO, the Argentine Minister. Their report was expected in about a week.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BUENOS AYRES, Wednesday, Feb. 2, 1859.

Since my last we have news from the squadron up the river. The Fulton, having the Commissioner, Admiral and suites on board, on her voyage from Parana to Corrientes, ran aground in the river Parana, near Esquina. She remained aground some four or five days, and was only relieved from her position by discharging into a small schooner some thirty tons of coals. She pursued her way on the 18th ult., since which date we know nothing of her movements.

At that time, however, the rest of the vessels which had met her at Rosario, viz., steamers H. Lane and Waterwitch and brigs Dolphin, Perry and Bainbridge were above her near Goya. Yesterday, the steamer Southern Star, towing the corvette Preble, left Rosario for up the river; and the steamers Westernport and Atalanta are in Montevideo, and will pursue their voyage in two or three days. The Southern Star and Preble carried up a body of some 180 marines additional to ordinary war complement, and we shall soon have there some 2 000 men armed with rifles, ready to disembark on occasion. With them goes a complete battery of DAHLGREN'S famous howitzers.

It now appears that there will not be—cannot be—any fighting in Paraguay. The system of personal, despotic or Imperial Governments is too much the order of the day here for them to be interfered with by the deep throats of our cannon. Brazil—miserable Montevideo, and the Argentine Confederation, have united in giving the law to their confrère of Paraguay. He must yield to the American exigencies—the sooner the better, to be rid of us; and Brazil has offered to LOPEZ the money, provided he says that he has not got it. What a farce!

While the Fulton was aground, the Paraguayan steamer Salto de Guayra, having URQUIZA and suite, male and female, on board, passed her, and undoubtedly arrived in Paraguay first. LOPEZ has resolved to meet them in his fortress of Humaita, where he intends to negotiate with our Commissioner. He has not made any warlike preparations, as before stated. Such of his stupidly-constructed batteries as the river has undermined, are left as they were placed by a Mightier Friend to civilization than either himself or our Administration. He has limited his thunder to a forced enrolment of all the males of fighting age—a simple expedient for further forced exactions in money. The chains which he bought here and sent up the river, will probably share the fate of his cannon, and some day be sold for old iron—if they can find a purchaser.

We have the President's Message here, and cannot do less than highly approve all that he says on our foreign relations. May he be successful in his aspirations, so far as they go—but the time is not far distant when international law must receive some emendatio s, and sooner than submit to oppression, we must even make those changes "peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must."

This city is in a great monetary ferment, just now, on account of an interference, on its Exchange, of the Brazilian banker, the Baron DE MARIA. When the American squadron arrived here, the agents of this banker were very active in prognosticating, on 'Change, the certainty of war from some point of the compass or other. Wealthy Englishmen, eager, as usual, for the "filthy lucre," seized the bait, and paper money went down, while gold ounces went up; that is to say, in real value, the ounce being worth more paper money than before. After the bait was well swallowed, the Baron, having laid his plans beforehand, suddenly hooks the fish by importing upon this small market some fifty or sixty thousand ounces. Then down they go, and the fish he catches are as numerous as if caught with a net, instead of the "sharpest kind of a hook." Everybody loses except the Baron, and this evil will exist just so long as the Government refrains from passing a law giving a fixed paper value to the doubloon, and compelling gold and silver to enter into circulation for the daily affairs of life.

This is a mere letter of news. In my next, I will resume the regular thread of my narrative correspondence. N.

BUENOS AYRES, Monday, Feb. 14, 1859.

I send you the Tribuna of this city, yesterday's date, containing in extenso all the documents yet at hand regarding the Paraguay mission. By the last note of Gen. Urquiza and Judge Bowlin you will perceive that the difficulty is given as settled on the 1st instant. You will also be made aware that Gen. URQUIZA was admitted to the interview of the 1st instant, between Judge BOWLIN and President LOPEZ. Such a course of proceeding on the part of our Envoy, who carries in his train twenty war-vessels, I shall abstain from commenting upon at present, and leave it to you to expound what is, and what ought to be, the diplomacy of our Republic. You will not fail to note the Spanish habit of fulsome flattery which obtains in the notes of Gen. URQUIZA, but in which Mr. Commissioner BOWLIN also proves himself quite as able an adept, judging from his reply.

Of the terms of compromise—for, as yet, we can consider it nothing else—I can give you no information by this vessel; for, although Gen. URQUIZA has had ample time to return to his home up the Uruguay River, and has already been there some five days, all our advices of their proceedings come through him, and from the gossiping reports of his suite. As yet no person here has a word direct from Paraguay, and there prevails an evident disposition to keep us in the dark.

On the evening of the 1st inst., immediately after the interview spoken of, Gen. URQUIZA embarked on his return to the country which he so happily governs, in the Paraguayan war steamer Tacuari, and he has strewed his road with self-gratulations and laudations, both in his notes and his proclamations on the "great and glorious" part which HE has acted in American diplomacy! But, notwithstanding all this, I am not yet satisfied that LOPEZ has not sold URQUIZA in more respects than one. Time will show, but I am pretty safe in assuring you that Judge BOWLIN has not got any more than his ultimatum, if even that. It now appears that the interview which I prognosticated as about to take place in La Paz between LOPEZ and URQUIZA, was an intended reality. But URQUIZA, before accepting the invitation of LOPEZ, and more faithful to his alliance with Brazil than events justified him in being, wrote to the Priest PENA, his Minister at Rio de Janeiro, asking the advice of the Brazilian Government. Instead of receiving an answer per next steamer, the Brazilian Minister at Montevideo, as you have been already informed, suddenly and secretly departed from his post for Asuncion. Seeing this, URQUIZA as suddenly followed him, in person, and of course completely overshadowed him. This move has not been agreeable to Brazil; in fact she has been outwitted.

Senhor D'AMARAL, the Brazilian Minister spoken of, requested from Judge BOWLIN admittance to the interviews, but was told that it could only be done as Secretary to General URQUIZA. This, of course, he could not accept.

Rumor has it that LOPEZ has offered his forces, naval and military, to General URQUIZA, to make a crusade against Buenos Ayres. Should this prove to be true, and should LOPEZ stick to his promise, we should have the agreeable spectacle furnished to us of a civil war throughout these countries, absolutely set on foot by American diplomacy. God grant that it may not be so! The bare supposition is sufficiently mortifying to us—we require not its realization. Our hope is not in the patriotism of URQUIZA, which extends no further than his own will, but in the falsehood of his "great and good friend" LOPEZ, whom he now so much loves, and whose crimes, he himself says in his notes, he has covered up to Judge BOWLIN, because LOPEZ equally promised to furnish his quota against ROSAS in 1852, but never donated a man or contributed a single dollar to his downfall. In the same manner Paraguay procured her independence from Spain. LOPEZ too well knows that should he send any of his people out of Paraguay, they will either desert to the enemy on the first occasion, so as not to be obliged to return under his yoke; or, when they return from the war, they will capsize their tyrant instanter.

The present appearance of things touching our mission in these waters, seems to be that it has had the effect of strengthening the power of the tyrant's personal governments, to the complete neglect of all those elements of progress and true republican principles which are to be found in at least one full half of the population of the Argentine Confederation.

On the arrival of the Paraguayan steamer Tacuari in Corrientes, she saluted the American flag with 21 guns, by order of General URQUIZA. Argentine President and guest on board. The salute was returned the next day by the squadron, and the senior officer paid his personal respects to the President. On his arrival at Parana—provisional capital of the Confederation, viz., until he takes Buenos Ayres—he did not disembark, but visited the sloop-of-war Preble at 6 A. M., when he was saluted, and embraced the Hon. Mr. YANCEY, our Minister resident there. In fact, it appears that General URQUIZA is so elated with his first diplomatic essay that it is rather dangerous for an American of any rank to go near him, for fear of receiving a spasmodic embrace. We may hope that this infirmity may not become chronic.

The Water Witch left Corrientes on the 3d inst. for Asuncion, it is supposed to act as a mail boat and bring here the dispatches for the mission for Washington. The delay in forwarding them probably consists in engrossing the Treaty, which, I have learned since beginning this letter, was positively signed in the presence of General Urquiza on the 1st inst. We may expect her arrival at any moment, as also that the Commissioner and suite and squadron will not be far behind her, because General URQUIZA has invited them all to celebrate the 22d inst.—WASHINGTON'S Birthday—at his estancia of San José, some five leagues from Concepcion del Uruguay. I know not whether the invitation has been accepted.

The Atalanta is at Rosario, broken down in her machinery, and the Memphis has gone ahead, towing up the river the Preble from Parana. Neither the Caledonia, nor Chapin, nor Metacomet, nor America, nor Canada, have been heard from as yet, and might as well have staid in their owner's hands for any good they will do here. Capt. PAGE'S small surveying steamer had passed above Parana, all well. Admiral FORREST, in sloop Falmouth, has been here for one week, but will soon return to Montevideo.

All rumors of invasion of Buenos Ayres by URQUIZA, assisted by LOPEZ' troops, may be attributed to the hopes and desires of the agitators more than to anything else. The present rumor is—for they change here every three hours—that Commissioner BOWLIN will offer his personal influence to settle the secession question between URQUIZA and Buenos Ayres, in return for the exercise of URQUIZA'S personal influence with LOPEZ. Should this be true, and take effect, it will indeed show a deeper knowledge of South American affairs than I have ever given credit to our Government for possessing, and will place Americans above and beyond all other nations. But URQUIZA must resign to gain this end of peace and union here. If he is prepared for this stroke of pure patriotism, which would erase from history many acts of his past life, he has indeed greatly changed. I hope, but believe not. We must see it first, for the late outrages in the province of San Juan give us no guarantee. The Constitutional Governor and Minister of State of this unfortunate province are now in Parana, under confinement. Their lives are safe, but fortune, home, comfort and friends have all disappeared from them, perhaps forever. Unfortunate reward for true patriotism this! Imagine the President of the United States removing in irons the Governor and Secretary of State of New-York because they ordered a General of the United States Army to be tried by the tribunals of Justice for an attempted revolution in arms against the State authority, and simply because that authority belonged to an opposite political party. This, in a few words, is the whole story of San Juan. The Caledonia has arrived, the Chapin is on the coast, and the Metacomet is expected, when she gets here.

N.

BUENOS AYRES, Monday, Feb. 21, 1859.

Since my last, I regret to say that I have no further news of consequence to communicate to you about the proceedings of the American expedition to Paraguay. Twenty-one days have passed since Gen. URQUIZA left the capital of that country, and Americans have no further news than those which he brought down; neither Admiral FORREST nor our Consul, nor anybody else knows anything more about the basis of the settlement than was then published and long since forwarded to you. By steamer from up the river yesterday, letters for the United States have been received from the squadron, and also from the Commissioner and his Secretary, from their families, but not a word for any one here.

Our outside steamboat news left the party returned from Asuncion at Corrientes on the 10th inst. when balls on board and on shore were the order of the day. They were expected at Parana on the 20th inst., rather too late to go to San José on the Uruguay, and eat up the Washington of the North, in the house of URQUIZA, the Washington of the South! It is further stated that the treaties of all kinds, were signed on the 9th inst. at Asuncion, and that they are much more favorable than could have been expected. This doubtless throws out of account the twenty men-o'-war, of which number there never existed any the slightest necessity to send more than three or four, unless they were intended for home purposes more than for operations in South America. In about a week more we may expect that the Commissioner and suite will be here, if he comes at all, which from past proceedings seems more than doubtful.

I forgot to mention in my last that D. BASILIO LOPEZ, the Diocesan Bishop of Paraguay, and elder brother of LOPEZ le gros, is at last dead—gone to his deserts! The only good thing that can be said of this illustrious Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church is, that he was an open enemy of his brother the President, to whom he said, on a feast day, when the President was dressed in his uniform, cocked-up hat, feathers and all: "Why so much parade? Do you remember, in the time of FRANCIA, when you used to go about the streets barefooted, and with a basket of mandioca upon the top of your head? The tonsure which it made still exists to show your former trade." This pleasantry, which was born of good sense, cost the poor Bishop an exile of a whole year upon the frontier of Paraguay. Although the Semanario—organ of LOPEZ—speaks highly of the purity of his life and his Christian death, I, who knew him, have only to remark that, in theology, he was as big a fool as his brother is in statesmanship. He never passed the frontier of his country, except when he went up the river Paraguay to Matto-Grosso, in 1843, to be consecrated, and fully agreed with the policy of his brother to keep all foreign Roman Catholic clergy out of the country, because by their superior knowledge they might turn him into ridicule.

I chronicle the death of another man, who had better be where he now is, than any longer amongst the society in which he lived only to injure. I allude to the Neapolitan PEDRO ANGELIS. This individual had been many years in this city. He made himself a warm partisan of ROSAS, incited thereto by the love of filthy lucre, and was the chief editor of the celebrated Archivo Americano, which ROSAS published in parallel columns of Spanish, English and French, by this means to deceive the civilized world about his acts and policy, whilst his enemies had no medium of contradiction. D. PEDRO ANGELIS was a man of varied talents and knowledge, member of many scientific societies in Europe, and a fair prototype of those of his brethren in France who at present bow the neck and lend their acquirements to the support of despotism. He is chiefly known by a large folio work entitled Historia del Rio de la Plata, in six tomes. It is a "collection of works and documents relative to the ancient and modern history of the province of the Rio de la Plata, with notes and dissertations," and is almost wholly a publication of documents found in the archives of Buenos Ayres. Its dedication is a pure adulation of the blood-thirsty monster, Rosas, to whom he belonged, soul and body. After the fall of his patron, at the battle of Monte Caseros, in February, 1852, he disappeared for a time, and then was heard of at Rio de Janeiro, where he won the favor of that Court—so closely related with the King of Naples—by writing a pamphlet against Lieut. MAURY'S proposition for the free navigation of the Amazon River. This piece of obsequiousness gained him, through the influence of the Imperial family, the nomination from Naples of Chargé d'Affaires and Consul-General at Parana; and thus he died as he had lived, in the service of tyrants. Hobson's choice between ROSAS and King Bomba.

I hear nothing more of the Bowlin mediation between URQUIZA and this State; and still less of invasion from the latter. Unless Mr. BOWLIN comes authorized ad hoc, which I cannot believe, its attempted operation will only do us more harm than good, and almost undoubtedly be declined by Buenos Ayres. I do not place faith in the rumor.

The continued and extraordinary silence of the Commissioner, and his suite, military and diplomatic, as well as the absence of all orders from Admiral SHUBRICK to the remaining vessels of the squadron, not to proceed up the river as they arrive, excites the greatest and most unconcealed discontent among Americans here. Why do they want secrecy? Are they ashamed of their acts? Or is the same influence at work, as that of favoritism in the publication of the last Presidential Message, or the deception practiced upon the NEW-YORK TIMES, about its Correspondent, who had permission to come out in the Sabine? I leave it to you to fathom these mysteries, simply remarking that we are in a most ridiculous position before the country here. Diplomatic Correspondence Between Gen. Urquiza and the United States Commissioner.

URQUIZA TO BOWLIN.

ASUNCION, Jan. 29, 1859.

To His Excellency, J. B. Bowlin, &c., &c.:

SIR: The undersigned, Captain-General and President of the Argentine Confederation, has the honor to address to his Excellency, Mr. BOWLIN, Commissioner of the Government of the United States of America near the Republic of Paraguay, his sincere acknowledgments and thanks for the honorable and friendly manner in which his Excellency has accepted the confidential intervention of the President, in furtherance of the objects of his Excellency's mission.

When I resolved to leave for a time the Argentine Republic and the grave duties which there require my presence, for the purpose of putting my personal efforts at the service of the interests under debate in this capital, and of warding off the perils of the war which seemed imminent between the United States and Paraguay I felt less alarm at the armed attitude in which the negotiations had been begun, and at the character of the questions in issue, than confidence in the high and noble intentions of the powerful nation which your Excellency so worthily represents,—in the relations of the United States with these Republics of the South,—and in the cordial patriotism of the illustrious ruler of Paraguay, with whom I enjoy an intimate friendship necessarily favorable to my attempts at conciliation.

I was far from cherishing any of the apprehensions which jealousy is busily trying to excite in some breasts as an obstacle in the way of the beneficent influence which our powerful Northern sister is called to exercise over the Southern Republics that have imitated the institutions and sincerely admire the colossal aggrandizement of the great American Power. My precursor, Mr. Commissioner, proud that her institutions were inspired by so magnificent an example, has received from the United States only the evidences of a loyal and generous amity, of good-will, and of encouragement. Let me be allowed to declare this publicly, with a specially grateful recollection of the particular sympathy with which I was honored by the actual Minister of the United States on the occasion of his reception. I thought with reason that I ought to make my very good and close friend, President LOPEZ, share these convictions of mine, and reject the influence of prejudicial events and of interested detractors. I thought, too, that the facts I had to offer, that my opinions and my testimony, might help to do away with the unfavorable impression produced upon the public mind of the United States, and upon your Excellency as well, by interested and angry informants in regard to Paraguay and her ruler.

I owe your Excellency my thanks for the opportunity you gave me of exerting myself in this direction before you began the discharge of your mission. I owe you my thanks, likewise, for showing me in some of our conferences that my visit to Assumption had not been useless, and that my influence had aided not a little in clearing the atmosphere and preparing the grounds upon which your Excellency could secure a hearing for those sentiments of justice, nobility and equity with which your Government desires to act. The eloquent language of the remarkable speech addressed by your Excellency to the President of Paraguay, and to which the President so worthily responded, perfectly fulfilled the hopes I had previously conceived, and which had been strengthened by my appreciation of the noble personal qualities by which your Excellency is adorned. The Government of your Excellency has reason to felicitate itself on the choice of its agent. The difficulties of this arduous mission disappear before your Excellency, and the opening of your mission augurs its result. In that result I have full confidence.

Let me be permitted to assure your Excellency afresh that I shall spare no personal endeavors towards securing for the negotiations confided to your charge an issue favorable to that peace which it is so desirable the Government of your Excellency should, for its own sake, maintain with these countries, linked as they are with the nation you represent by so many rich commercial ties, nor less for the sake of these countries themselves now just springing forward in the race of commercial, social and political progress. A conciliatory ending of your mission will redound more to your Excellency's honor than the use of arms, which in such a contest can win but a barren glory.

And I assure your Excellency of the prudent, moderate, enlightened and patriotic views of the Paraguayan President, who loves peace as dearly as he loves the honor of his country. The Argentine Government, animated by a policy of peace and fraternity which it has been happy enough to inaugurate for the good of these regions long given over to misfortune, has felt a special interest in the prevention of a war between two sister States, and thought it right to dispatch one of its best accredited diplomatists as a Minister Plenipotentiary to Paraguay for the purpose of offering our mediation if an opportunity should occur for doing so.

For my own part, I have sufficient reason to believe that with the good dispositions now felt on both sides, it will be easy to reach a definite and conciliatory settlement; and although I am urgently pressed to return to my own State, I remain here in the confident hope that I shall soon be able to felicitate your Excellency and President LOPEZ in person, on the peaceful and friendly settlement of these questions. I desire this glory for your Excellency; I desire it for your Government which will be bound more and more closely by so fair an example, to her younger sisters of the South. Meanwhile, let the language of personal good-will and deference which your Excellency has already commanded, and the high deserts of your Excellency's prudent and enlightened diplomacy which I shall take pleasure in recommending to the attention of my fellow countrymen, be a new link in the close relations of friendship which unite the Government of the Confederation with that of the United States. And suffer me to ask it of your Excellency that with the zeal which distinguishes your character and with full confidence in the good intentions of President LOPEZ, you will accelerate as far as possible the course of negotiations, that I may have the pleasure of being present at the honorable conclusion of difficulties so unpleasant—at the celebration of so glorious a peace.

I salute your Excellency with the highest consideration, and am your devoted and faithful servant,

JUSTO JOSE DE URQUIZA.

BOWLIN TO URQUIZA.

ASUNCION, Jan. 30, 1859.

To His Excellency, Captain-General Justo José de Urquiza, President of the Argentine Confederation:

SIR: In reply to the kind and courteous letter with which, under date of yesterday, I have been honored by your Excellency, allow me to say that I shall take infinite pride and pleasure in communicating to my own Government so signal a proof of a friendship which I sincerely reciprocate.

In recognizing the eminent obligations we owe your Excellency for so promptly and spontaneously quitting your own country at a great sacrifice of your personal convenience and of your public interests, in order to promote peace and restore harmony, I feel that mere acknowledgements, however cordial and sincere, are only a weak and inadequate discharge of the debt which this act must engrave upon the hearts of my fellow-citizens; and which they will always be proud and happy to recognize. For such disinterested efforts in the cause of humanity and progress, he who makes them can only find his reward in the heart by which they were inspired and in the sacred benediction promised to the Peace-makers. For the warm encomium it has pleased your Excellency to pass upon my humble efforts (which your Excellency has seconded with so much skill and zeal,) to reëstablish amicable relations between the sister Republics, and so to nourish those international sympathies which are the strongest international bonds, I return your Excellency all that your Excellency would ask, my most cordial thanks. The armed attitude to which your Excellency alludes, is merely the consequence of what appeared to my Government an inevitable though painful necessity; and your Excellency does simple justice to my country in the spontaneous tribute rendered by your Excellency's personal convictions and sympathies to the elevation of the sentiments by which my Government is actuated, and which are opposed to violence as the enemy of civilization. Equally well-founded in your Excellency's confidence in the deep feeling of justice and equity, by which the United States ever have, and ever will be animated. Although I cannot admit that the presence of our squadron in the waters of the Plate is a matter for speculation and commentary, (since each nation is the sole responsible judge of its own motives and actions,) yet I feel bound in fairness to admit that your Excellency has rendered a fitting tribute to your illustrious friend, President LOPEZ, whose conciliatory and enlightened spirit, and whose courteous bearing evoke my own ready and willing testimony to the like effect. I accept with gratification, in the name of the United States, that beneficent influence upon the southern Republics of the Continent which your Excellency attributes to them—for, although acts of humanity, as I have already observed, bring with them their own best reward in the intimate satisfaction they yield the doer, it would be worse than hypocrisy to affect insensibility to their just guerdon.

The acknowledgment your Excellency makes of the encouraging and friendly spirit always shown by my Government towards its younger sisters of the South, cannot fail to quicken our desire and to fortify our determination of seeking and fomenting the development of kindred institutions and the aggrandizement of nations destined one day, no doubt, to serve as examples to all the world of free industry and intelligent happiness, as well as of material prosperity.

I can scarcely say with how much ardor I will second your Excellency's expressed wish for a prompt, honorable and friendly settlement of the painful questions which require my presence at this place. Demanding nothing that we do not believe to be just, and are not prepared to maintain, we are moved to hope that we shall not be disappointed in respect of the reasonable and pacific dispositions attributed by your Excellency to the President of Paraguay. Finally, whatever may be the issue of the pending negotiation, (and I renew my assurance that I have extended the olive-branch, and will continue to do so,) I beg your Excellency to believe that I shall ever treasure up the memory of your good-will among the most precious recollections of my life. The close resemblance which exists between the institutions of the Confederation and those of the United States, entitles us to consider the country of your Excellency in the light of an adopted son, who can never invoke in vain the counsel and support of his foster father. If your Excellency takes pleasure in manifesting the friendly partiality which I am proud to have inspired, and congratulates my Government on the choice of my poor talents for the settlement of the very serious complications that exist between these regions and ourselves, what terms ought I to employ in felicitating the Argentine Confederation on its good fortune in having raised to power a Chief who unites to the daring courage of the warrior the prudent wisdom of the statesman? Trusting that your Excellency's long absence in obedience to such generous and humane motives will but endear your Excellency more warmly to your fellow-citizens,

I am, with grateful respect, your Excellency's obliged and humble friend and servant,

JAMES B. BOWLIN.

URQUIZA TO BOWLIN.

ASUNCION, Feb. 1, 1859.

To His Excellency J. B. Bowlin, &c., &c.:

MOST EXCELLENT SIR, AND MY ILLUSTRIOUS FRIEND: My hopes have been fulfilled. The President of Paraguay and your Excellency have suffered me to be present at that happy settlement of the questions pending between the United States and Paraguay, which was this day concluded. The conference, which has been crowned with a perfect result, has confirmed all that in my previous letter I had said to your Excellency, and especially all that referred to the elevated qualities of your Excellency. Envoys like your Excellency are truly messengers of peace and friendship; happy would these countries be were the choice of foreign States always to fall upon personages so upright and so noble: and never could any reason arise for misunderstandings between the Great Powers and these Republics which so much need the support of their friendly influence to assist their industrial and commercial progress. I am the best possible witness that your Excellency has spared no efforts to secure a worthy and honorable settlement; and that without so much zeal, prudence and wisdom it would have been hard to do this. I cannot resign so cherished a glory as the part I attribute to myself in this happy result, but even for this I am indebted to the opportunities so delicately offered by your Excellency. For the little that it may be worth, I feel it my duty to bear my testimony before my great friend, the President of the United States, to the lofty conduct of your Excellency, and to the gratitude I owe for the same to the great American nation and to its Government. I owe your Excellency the warmest expressions of congratulation and friendship—and let me be permitted to say that I count upon your Excellency's doing me the honor to visit me at San José, there, on the birthday of the immortal WASHINGTON, to celebrate the peace between the United States and Paraguay, for all that it is in itself, and for its bearings upon the other South-American Republics, which will value this proof of the justice and nobility of the great nation, as contributing to the strength of those bonds which become their reciprocal interests and their common prosperity. In all that concerns my country, in my official position and as a friend who longs to return the marks of consideration and esteem he has received, I am your Excellency's most obedient and faithful friend,

JUSTO JOSE DE URQUIZA.

URQUIZA TO LOPEZ.

ASUNCION, Feb. 1.

To His Excellency Don Carlos Antonio Lopez, President of the Republic of Paraguay:

MY GREAT AND GOOD FRIEND: On taking my leave, happy in the fulfillment of the object of my journey, I beg to leave with your Excellency in a few lines a written testimony of my gratitude to you and to the people of Paraguay, for the demonstrations of consideration and esteem which I have received during my agreeable sojourn in this capital.

I shall everywhere bear witness to the prosperity of the country which is indebted to your Excellency for its moral order, and the assured progress which it is making toward that perfection of which it is worthy. I shall be a faithful witness of the noble and lofty qualities which adorn your Excellency as a man, and as a first magistrate repelling with firmness the sinister detraction of violent enemies. It is due to them that the friendship which I profess for your Excellency rests upon the basis of profound sympathy.

It has been my fortune to contribute decidedly to the happy solution of the difficulties existing between the United States and this Republic. The remembrance of this day will be productive hereafter of fraternal relations between the Argentine Confederation and Paraguay, each day increasing in intimacy, and which in recognizing common interests, will contribute to their reciprocal greatness and prosperity. I am happy at having promoted so honorable and auspicious a peace,—a peace consonant with that dignity of the republic of which your Excellency is so careful.

The tie that unites us from this day forward, rooted as it is in the sentiments which an event so fortunate inspires, will be eternal. Your Excellency shall enjoy the benefit of it, not merely in your own person, out in the happiness of your people for whom I entertain an interest thoroughly fraternal.

In greeting me at my arrival, your Excellency uttered these memorable words, which are graven upon my heart: "The visit of your Excellency is an honor to me, and a glory for my country." At parting, allow me to say, that your friendship is a glory which I esteem above all things; and that it will be a source of pride to my countrymen. The Argentine and Paraguayan people are now truly brethren. Their Governments are actuated by one impulse; and the future smiles upon the alliance of the two Republics.

I embrace your Excellency with all my soul, and reiterate that I am your most affectionate friend and servant,

JUSTO J. DE URQUIZA.

The Paraguayan Treaty.

From the Tribuna de Buenos Ayres.

The Tribuna of Buenos Ayres, of Feb. 13, gives "on the best authority" the following basis of the settlement effected by Mr. Commissioner BOWLIN: Paraguay binds herself to make full and honorable reparation for the affair of the Water-Witch, paying $10,000 to the family of the sailor who was killed on board that vessel; and further to indemnify all North American citizens for any losses they may have suffered—their claims to be examined by a Mixed Commission, and, in case of any disagreement, to be referred to a foreign Minister as umpire.

Another Riot at Quarantine Expected.

A POLICE FORCE HELD IN READINESS TO QUELL IT —THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS IN SECRET SESSION—EXCITEMENT AT STATEN ISLAND.

In view of certain rumors which have been floating about, of the contemplated destruction of the Quarantine buildings recently erected at Staten Island, if the Legislature should adjourn without passing the bill providing for their removal, the Police Commissioners held a special meeting Saturday morning, and, in secret session, determined what measures should be taken in the premises for overcoming any efforts in that behalf that should be made. The following resolution was adopted by the Commissioners, and forwarded to the General Superintendent:

Resolved, That the General Superintendent be directed to hold in readiness 120 men, under command of Captain WATERBURY and Sergeants BELTON, PARSTON, DIXON and DEGE, to proceed to Quarantine for the defence of the Quarantine buildings.

Accordingly 120 policemen, armed with volcanic rifles, were directed to assemble at the First, Second, and Third Precinct Station-houses, and await further orders. Sergeant BERVOORT, Special Aid to the General Superintendent, was appointed Commissary of the force, and a boat was procured, so that, if necessary, the policemen might be immediately conveyed to the seat of war. Two officers were dispatched to Staten Island to feel the pulse of the projected movement, and do sentry duty during the night. Meantime the General Superintendent addressed the following communication to the Commissioners of Emigration:

OFFICE OF GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE,
No. 413 BROOME STREET, CORNER OF ELM.
NEW-YORK, April 16, 1859.

To the President of the Commissioners of Emigration:

From a recent visit and observation at or near Quarantine I discovered a disposition to renew the attack upon the buildings at Quarantine in case the bill for the removal of Quarantine should fail in its passage.

From information received from Albany, we are apprehensive that if the bill should not pass the disaffected may shortly make the attack.

In compliance with a resolution of the Commissioners of Police I have directed one hundred and twenty men be held in readiness to proceed to Quarantine for its protection at short notice.

You will please, therefore, give me the earliest notice if you have reason to apprehend any attack upon the buildings at Quarantine.

I should feel obliged by receiving any information, if you are possessed of any, in regard to any contemplated movements of the insurgents.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,

F. A. TALLMADGE,
General Superintendent of Police.

The police force was under arms all night, but in the morning when it was known that the Legislature had not yet adjourned sine die, and might not do so for several days, the General Superintendent directed that the men be held in readiness no longer. Deputy Superintendent CARPENTER, who had command of the force, accordingly dismissed the men at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning. At Tompkinsville and Stapleton on Saturday the citizens gathered in knots at the different rallying points, and discussed, with much warmth, the probable turn of affairs, and the old threats to destroy the Quarantine establishment were expressed, in the event of the failure of the Legislature to pass the Removal bill. The excitement appears to be about as great as it was before the destruction in September last. The more moderate, however, advised that they should not act rashly, and thus forfeit the sympathy and coöperation of their friends until all hope was past. Should the Legislature adjourn without satisfying them, it is evident that a strong force will be immediately requisite to protect the State property from destruction.

THE SICKLES TRAGEDY.

Trial of Daniel E. Sickles for the Murder of Philip Barton Key.

TWELFTH DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

TESTIMONY OF PETER CAGGER.

Arguments on the Admission of Evidence to Prove Adultery.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, April 17.

Mr. OULD, the District-Attorney, resumes, to-morrow, his argument on the inadmissibility of testimony as to the fact of adultery, offered by the defence. Should the Judge rule it out as incompetent, the defence will proceed to put in other proofs, including the anonymous letter which informed Mr. SICKLES of the criminal liason between his wife and Mr. KEY, and of their meeting at the house in Fifteenth-street.

The prosecution, in rebuttal, will offer evidence impeaching the witnesses, especially WOOLDRIDGE. The defence are prepared to meet that, as many gentlemen from New-York are here to testify as to his character and reliability.

It is believed that an effort will be made to introduce testimony as to the personal history of the prisoner. The defence is also prepared for that contingency, though it is not considered likely that evidence of that description will be allowed.

The termination of the case is deemed uncertain; it may occupy ten days yet. The practice here, unlike that in New-York, is to argue questions of law after the testimony has closed, in asking the Court to instruct the Jury that such and such is the law. That will occupy much time in itself. Mr. STANTON, it is understood, will argue the point for the defence. The closing speeches on both sides will necessarily be lengthy.

The Judge is feeble, and cannot endure a breath of air. The Court-room is thronged, and lack of ventilation makes the atmosphere almost suffocating. Public interest does not diminish, and the feeling of the friends of the parties becomes more and more decided. Q.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, April 16—11 A. M.

We are requested on the part of Mr. Sickles to state that he deeply regrets for many reasons, but particularly for the sake of his child, who must one day read the record of her mother's shame, that the confession of Mrs. Sickles was published; the publication was contrary to his wishes, and if it had been within his power he would have suppressed it.

The Court opened at the usual hour, and with the usual crowd in attendance.

The argument on the question of the admissibility of evidence of adultery was pretermitted for the present in order to allow Peter Cagger, of Albany, to be examined, he being desirous to return home this afternoon.

TESTIMONY OF PETER CAGGER.

Peter Cagger, examined by Mr. Brady—I am a member of the bar, residing in the City of Albany; have known Mr. Sickles twelve years and upwards; saw Mr. Key but once, in June, 1858; I was introduced to him by letter from Mr. Sickles, and engaged him in a case as counsel.

To the Court—I retained Mr. Key's services on the ground of that letter of introduction.

Not cross-examined.

ARGUMENT ON THE ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE.

Mr. Ould would like to refer the counsel for the defence to one or two additional authorities, third volume Jones' Law Reports. The State vs. Reuben Samuel. The State vs. John P. Creighton; C. Iredell, page 164. The State vs. John G. Ferguson; Hill, South Carolina Reports, page 619.

Mr. Phillips resumed his argument. He had discussed yesterday the following propositions: First that if the evidence offered is admissible for any purpose, it must be received. Second, that the issue presented by the indictment is not whether there has been a killing, but whether there has been a murder. Third, that, to constitute murder, there must be established a killing with deliberate intent or malice prepense. Fourth, that the malice of the law implied a wicked, depraved and malignant spirit—a heart regardless of social duty, and fatally bent on mischief. Fifth, that even in cases of express malice, arising out of a past grudge, if there has intervened new provocation, it was not to be presumed the killing was on the old grudge. Sixth, that in cases where the law presumes malice from the act of killing, this presumption may be rebutted by expressions of good will and of acts of kindness on the part of the prisoner towards the deceased, always considered important evidence, as showing what was his general disposition towards the deceased, from which the Jury may be led to conclude that his intention could not have been what the charge imputes.

Quoting 2d Russell, page 698, "That this presumption may also be rebutted by showing that the killing was in passion; for passions arising from sufficient provocation is evidence of the absence of malice." [Quoting from the Commonwealth vs. Bell, page 162.]

Seventh—That as the law declares adultery to be the greatest of all provocations, there could be no such legal absurdity as permitting evidence of the lesser provocation, and excluding evidence of the greater.

Eighth—This brought me to the consideration of the admission of the prosecution, that if the accused had seen with his own eyes the very act of adultery, then the provocation given could be given in evidence, but not otherwise. This I demonstrate to be wholly unreasonable and fallacious by showing that the eye, the ear, and the touch were but media through which facts were transmitted to the brain, and that this governed the will, and decided the action. I was illustrating the position that the knowledge of the adultery at the time of its commission could be as definitely conveyed to the mind by the ear or the touch as by the eye, and cited examples to this end, when the adjournment of the Court took place. He had yesterday presented a case in illustration of the falsity and absurdity of the doctrine that a man must see the act of adultery to entitle him to set it up in justification. He might also illustrate the same idea by the case of a blind man. He had seen a picture of Hogarth's representing a scene at an English hustings, where an old man, with the snows of many Winters on his head, and without his right arm, which he had lost in the service of his country, came up to vote. The old man was challenged, and the Judge declared that inasmuch as the form of the oath required the person taking it to place his right hand on the book, and that as this man had no right hand, he was not a competent voter. That doctrine was about as absurd as the doctrine laid down by the prosecution, that the husband must find the adulterer in the very act. Suppose a husband found the adulterer in his wife's bed in a state of quiescence, or found him disrobing or clothing himself in the bedroom of his wife, would it be held that that fact would be a legal justification?

The District-Attorney did not know that there was any well-defined line in this matter.

Mr. Phillips replied that there was no reason for this rule, as in the nature of things it would be impossible to make the proof, and where the reason of the law does not apply the law itself is at an end. Did not the adulterer invariably endeavor to shield himself from detection? Besides, if the husband did find the parties in the act how was it to be proved? The tongue of the adulterer is palsied, the tongue of the wife silenced by the law, and the prisoner cannot give evidence in his own cause. It was not, therefore, the mere witnessing of the fact, but the knowledge of it, however derived, which stirs the human passions and lashes them into fury;

MISCELLANEOUS.

MORE TO BE ADMIRED THAN THE RICHEST DIADEM EVER WORN BY KINGS OR EMPERORS.

WHAT! WHY A BEAUTIFUL HEAD OF HAIR. Because it is the ornament God Himself provided for all our race. Reader, although the rose may bloom ever so brightly in the glowing cheek, the eye be ever so sparkling, the teeth be those of pearls, if the head is bereft of its covering, or the hair be snarled and shriveled, harsh and dry, or worse still, if sprinkled with gray, nature will be more than half her charms. Prof. W. Wood's Hair Restorative, if used two or three times a week, will restore and permanently secure to all such an ornament. Read the following and judge. The writer of the first is the celebrated Pianist, Thalberg:

NEW-YORK, April 19, 1858.

DR. WOOD—Dear Sir: Permit me to express to you the obligations I am under for the entire restoration of my hair to its original color; about the time of my arrival in the United States it was rapidly becoming gray, but upon the application of your "Hair Restorative" it soon recovered its original hue. I consider your Restorative as a very wonderful invention, quite efficacious as well as agreeable.

I am, dear Sir, yours truly,
S THALBERG.

DRYCH A'R GWYLIEDYDD.
WELSH NEWSPAPER OFFICE,
No. 15 NASSAU-ST., April 12, 1858.

PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: Some month or six weeks ago I received a bottle of your Hair Restorative and gave it to my wife, who can indeed to put on her hair, little thinking at the time that it would restore the gray hair to its original color, but to her as well as my surprise, after a few weeks' trial it has performed that wonderful effect by turning all the gray hairs to a dark brown, at the same time beautifying and thickening the hair. I strongly recommend the above Restorative to all persons in want of such a change of their hair.

CHARLES CARDEW.
NEW-YORK, July 25, 1857.

PROF. O. J. WOOD: With confidence do I recommend your Hair Restorative, as being the most efficacious article I ever saw. Since using your Hair Restorative my hair and whiskers which were almost white have gradually grown dark; and I now feel confident that a few more applications will restore them to their natural color. It also has relieved me of all deadruff and unpleasant itching, so common among persons who perspire freely.

J. G. KILGY.

PROF. WOOD: About two years ago my hair commenced falling off and turning gray; I was fast becoming bald, and had tried many Remedies to no effect. I commenced using your Restorative in January last. A few applications fastened my hair firmly. It began to fill up, grow out, and turned back to its former color, (black.) At this time it is fully restored to its original color, health and appearance, and I cheerfully recommend its use to all.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 1, 1857. J. D. HOES.

The Restorative is put up in bottles of three sizes, viz.: Large, medium, and small; the small holds half a pint, and retails for $1 per bottle; the medium holds at least 20 per cent. more in proportion than the small, retails for $2 per bottle; the large holds a quart, 40 per cent. more in proportion, and retails for $3.

O. J. WOOD & CO., Proprietors, No. 312 Broadway, New-York, (in the great New-York Wire Railing Establishment,) and No 144 Market-st., St. Louis, Mo.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Royal Mail steamship Europa had not been signaled at Sandy Hook at 2 o'clock this morning. She is now in her sixteenth day out from Liverpool, and consequently overdue.

Our correspondence from Vera Cruz to the 7th inst. furnishes details of the news by the Tennessee as briefly telegraphed from New-Orleans. The recognition of the Juarez Government by our Minister, as already announced, took place on the 6th, and we are enabled to give this morning the address of Mr. McLane on the occasion, together with the response of President Juarez. The occasion was one of unusual interest, and was followed by the greatest rejoicing. Previous advices from the capital are also confirmed.

By the arrival of the brig Osprey, at this port on Saturday, we have later intelligence from Buenos Ayres, to the 23d February, with more ample details of the recent negotiations between our Commissioner and the Paraguay Government at Asuncion. Our correspondence from there will be found highly interesting.

The Legislature, as we anticipated, did not adjourn on Saturday, though it will probably do so to-day. In the Senate, the New-York Tax bill was passed by a vote of 20 to 7, with amendments inserting the $250,000 appropriation for the Commissioners of Record, and $880,000 for the Lowber and other judgments. It also contains a provision empowering the members of the old Police force to maintain action against the City for salary. The Supply bill was also passed, 22 to 5; also, the bill to create a public fund in this City, to be called the Croton Water Stock. In the Assembly, a message was received from the Governor vetoing the bill providing for the payment of interest on the Canal Commissioner's drafts. After a lengthy debate, the pill was passed over the Governor's veto, 61 to 18. The veto of the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad bill was sustained. The bill to amend the Code of Procedure was passed. The rest of the session was consumed in debate on the Senate's amendments to the General Appropriation bill.

In the Sickles case, on Saturday, the day was almost wholly occupied by arguments of counsel on the admissibility of evidence tending to prove the act of adultery. At the opening of the Court, the testimony of Peter Cagger, of Albany, was taken, who testified that he was introduced to Mr. Key by a letter from Mr. Sickles, and on the strength of that introduction, engaged Key as counsel in a suit. No other testimony was given during the day.

In the Echo slaver case, at Charleston, the evidence for the prosecution was closed on Thursday last. No testimony for the defence was offered nor any cross-examination of witnesses for Government. It was proved by the testimony of Lieut. Carpenter, Coxswain Monaghan and Capt. Maffitt, of the U. S. brig Dolphin, and by other parties, that the negroes on board the Echo were found in a very distressed and suffering condition; that Capt. Townsend was a native of Newport, R. I.; that the condition of the vessel, when captured, was extremely filthy, and that the charts found in possession of the Captain had marked upon them, in pencil, a continuous line from the coast of Africa to the point of her capture.

A party of Stockbridge Indians, under the lead of Jesse Wybrar, a half-breed, and Levi Konkapat, have taken possession of a farm of two hundred acres in Copake, Columbia County, in this State, under their claim to a tract of six hundred thousand acres in the Counties of Albany, Rensselaer and Columbia. Some trouble is anticipated.

Another Free-State Convention is called in Kansas, to meet at Big Springs on the 3d May. Ex-Governor Stanton has returned to the Territory to reside permanently.

A company of 1,200 miners is at the Kansas gold mines, but some 50 only are at work. Most of the party are engaged in building houses on the various town-sites. The Indians are gathering in great numbers in the neighborhood of the settlements, and their presence excites apprehensions of trouble.

New Army orders have been issued, positively prohibiting settlers from selling ardent spirits; forbid sales of sutler's stores to enlisted men, on credit, for any sum exceeding one-third of the soldier's pay for the current month; suspend the construction of new buildings at any military station, except those which can be built by the labor of the troops; limit the number of privates for regimental bands to sixteen, to be deducted from the legal standard of the several companies; order the immediate assignment of all enlisted men to regiments; and render obligatory the consent of parents or guardians to the enlistment of minors.

In the case of the Oberlin rescuers, the Judge (Willson) charged the Jury on the 14th instant, that it did not become a Court of inferior jurisdiction to entertain a question upon the unconstitutionality of laws which have been fully decided to be in strict accordance with the Constitution by the highest legal tribunal in the country; and dismissed the arguments of counsel for the defence by stating that much had been eloquently said by learned counsel which would be entitled to great weight if addressed to Congress, or an eclesiastical tribunal, accustomed to discuss questions of casuistry. The Jury, after an absence of two hours, as we have before stated, returned a verdict of guilty against Simeon Bushnell, the first of the 32 indicted parties who was brought to trial.

Resolutions, intended to be embodied in an Address to the Queen, have been introduced into the Canadian Parliament, asking such a change in the Customs regulations as will permit the entry into English ports of Colonial produce, shipped from an American port, on the same terms as if shipped direct from a Colonial port.

Four hundred firms engaged in the Shoe and Leather trade in Boston and its vicinity, held a public meeting in Boston on the 15th; to take measures for establishing a uniform inspection of Leather. A Committee of seven was appointed, to secure concerted action.

The Police Commissioners, apprehensive of another attack on the Quarantine buildings at Staten Island, in consequence of information received by them which led them to believe that an attack was intended in case the Legislature adjourned without passing the bill providing for the removal of Quarantine, held a special meeting Saturday, and directed the General Superintendent to assemble a force of 120 policemen and hold them in readiness to proceed, if necessary, to Quarantine. The policemen were kept under arms all night, but no outbreak took place, and in the morning, when it was ascertained that the Legislature had not adjourned sine die, they were dismissed.

One of the Coroners yesterday held an inquest touching the sudden decease of an elderly Englishman named John Thompson, who resided at the time of his death in the upper part of Second-avenue, but who, a few years ago, was largely engaged in the milk business in Williamsburgh, and amassed therein a competency. A variety of circumstances induced a belief that he came to his death from being struck across the temple with a hatchet by his wife—the blade of the hatchet having severed the temporal artery. A verdict was rendered ascribing his death to violence at the hands of his wife, and she was committed to prison to await the result of a legal inquisition.

The report of the City Inspector's office exhibits an increase of 23 in the bills of mortality for the last week. The number of deaths was 401 against 378 the week previous.

On Saturday sales were make of 2,000 bales Cotton, at a shade easier prices. Flour was in good request, and was firmer. Wheat was quiet. Corn and Pork were heavy and lower. Beef was more active. Sugars were in fair demand. Coffee, Teas and Molasses were moderately inquired for. Naval Stores were less sought after. Rice was depressed. Other commodities exhibited no important changes. The total number of vessels of all classes in port was 470.

The Sickles Case.

Like the green-grocer who gloried in having once been kicked by the King of France, the Evening Post of this City prefers superlative disgrace to comparative obscurity, and insists on making its name resound beyond the limited sphere of its own circulation, even at the expense of its reputation for decency, honesty and common sense.

The annals of criminal jurisprudence and the Press show nothing quite so disgusting as the unflinching malignity with which this obstinate little journal persists in pursuing a political opponent and a personal enemy under the cowardly pretext of a concern for public justice. Even the grave and considerate Journal of Commerce has at last been moved to a mild rebuke of this shameful and silly course of conduct, and in its issue of Saturday briefly observes in relation to the Sickles case, that "It will perhaps be unnecessary for the prosecution to 'sum up' this case, as the Evening Post is doing the work for them, day by day, as the trial progresses."

The only objection that can be offered to this inference of the Journal of Commerce is the utter weakness and triviality of the style in which the Post has executed its self-imposed task. Like poor old Colonel Charteris it displays the disposition and suffers the penalty without exhibiting the capacity or enjoying the satisfactions of its disgraceful passion. The efforts of Mr. Sickles' counsel to defend their client have been met, day after day, in the columns of the Post with an acrimony which would suggest the inspiration of a retainer, but for the imbecility which makes such a suggestion untenable; the slightest insinuation, the wildest rhetorical rant of the prosecution, have been gravely adopted and emphasized against him; his provocations have been caricatured; the most unsubstantiated rumors against him have been dealt with as admitted facts; and the whole trial has been regularly edited into one continuous tirade against the prisoner at the bar.

Of course the natural effect of this sort of thing has already begun to react upon the Post itself even within the narrow range of its own readers. The old Anglo-Saxon instinct of "fair play" cannot be safely trifled with, and all honorable men are beginning to recognize in this extra-judicial enthusiasm, the ghoul-like spirit which insulted the grave of Daniel Webster, and followed the frailties of the great New-England statesman with hideous pertinacity into the very presence of his mourning family and of the nation which mourned with them. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Post should endeavor to escape from a responsibility likely to prove more impressive than remunerative, by abusing its cotemporaries and casting upon them the odium of provoking its disreputable policy. In its desperate desire to accomplish this creditable result, the Post has now fallen into deliberate falsehood—falsehood of that clear and specific kind which deprives those who indulge in it of their natural claim on the confidence of their fellow-creatures. On Saturday last the Post distinctly charged this journal with "daily vituperation of the Evening Post" in relation to the Sickles case. It conveyed and meant to convey to its readers the impression that this journal had begun a systematic course of comment upon the Sickles case and upon the conduct of the Post, and that "every morning," with "occasional interruption," evoked some special whipping for the luckless Post. Now, we are ready to make all allowance for what has been happily defined as the "subjective truth." It is very probable that the Post may have believed that it has been diurnally whipped by the Times—for it has certainly deserved to be so whipped—and it has naturally longed for the distinction of receiving its deserts. But as a curious illustration of the "objective" mendacity with which a journal may be conducted, we have looked up the facts in the case and find them as follows: Mr. Key was slain by Mr. Sickles on Feb. 27. On the next day the Times gave a full account of the affair without a word of comment. On the same day the Post published a ferocious assault upon the character and reputation of Mr. Sickles. Fifty days have since gone by including seven Sundays. In the whole course of the forty-three intervening issues of this journal the Sickles case has been editorially referred to but eleven times, on more than one-half of which occasions the allusion has been provoked by some extraordinary effusion of the Evening Post. Since the case passed into the hands of the Jury we have commented upon it once to vindicate the prosecuting Attorney from the charge of partiality in his course with the Jury—once to call attention to the way in which the Post and its prototype the Washington Star, had misrepresented the public opinion of Washington—once to ridicule the impertinence with which a certain class of English journals had turned the case into a vehicle for flinging contumely upon the American character, and once to expose the swift false witness borne against the prisoner for an act entirely beyond his control. We have carefully abstained from discussing questions which involve the life of a fellow-creature, and which are under actual investigation by the competent judicial authorities. By this abstinence, which is "our connection with the horrid affair of Washington," the Post regretfully assures us we have exposed ourselves to much "disgrace out of doors." This is quite possible, since we have the highest authority for it that the public "out of doors" consists not only of vagrants and vagabonds, but also of those "who pray standing in the corners of the streets," and "give God thanks that they are not as other men, publicans and sinners," and of the "strange women" who "are in the street and lie in wait at the corners." With the public "in doors," however,—with those who have homes and honor them, have business and attend to it, let their neighbors alone, save to serve them, and respect the laws too much to tamper with them, we are inclined to think the word "disgrace" will be reserved for the meddlers with matters that do not concern them, and with personal rights that should be as sacred from partisan malignity as from any other vulgar and selfish passion.

The Treaty with Paraguay.

The news of the settlement of the Paraguay question is confirmed, and we have as explicit a statement of the stipulations embraced in the treaty as can be looked for in advance of the authorized official publication. An apology for the affair of the Water Witch; a pecuniary indemnity to the heirs of the pilot who was killed on that vessel; the ratification of the treaty of 1852; the freedom of navigation on the Parana and Paraguay; and the submission of the claims of the Rhode Island Company to a Mixed Commission to meet at Washington, such are the results of our formidable armada. The apology, the ratification, and the free navigation of the rivers, hardly come under the head of pecuniary returns, as the former two have no value in the markets, and the latter, even in the absence of negotiation, was sooner or later inevitable. A compensation of $10,000 to the survivors of the slain seaman, and an indemnity to the house of Hopkins, which even Washington inflation cannot swell beyond some $50,000, must stand as the modest per contra to the five millions which the expedition has already cost us; to the as yet doubtful impression made upon the South American Republics, whose good-will is of the greatest moment to us; and to the loss of moral prestige and of national dignity to which so paltry a business has subjected this Government in the eyes of an observant European diplomacy.

And it is not unimportant to note that in this negotiation we have acceded to all the preliminary requirements of President Lopez. He became satisfied of the folly of his objections to the Pendleton treaty, and offered long ago to resume negotiations, with a view to the ratification of that instrument, provided the Water Witch and Hopkins affairs could be embraced in the same discussions. This reasonable proposition our Government declined. Mr. Bowlin, however, has proceeded upon this very basis, and has moreover conducted his correspondence and interviews in a language which the uneducated chief of South American backwoodsmen could understand. The result is before us. There is not the slightest reason to doubt that a competent envoy might, without ship or shot, have accomplished two years since all we have now paid for so dearly. The reflection involves rather an indifferent compliment to American statesmanship.

Pogram in Paraguay.

South American affairs are not usually very attractive to North American readers. Our people have no objection to Rio coffee when they cannot procure old Java or Mocha. They admit the value of Buenos Ayrean hides, and are perfectly willing that Montevideo should export as much tallow as Russia. They are even prepared to believe Mr. Church when his magical pencil tells them its magnificent stories of tropical Alps and sunny vales beneath the frowning brow of Chimborazo. But as a rule, we regret to be obliged to believe that the politics and the public affairs of our young Republican Sisters at the South, do not excite a very passionate interest in the heart of the American people. Even Brazil is regarded, we fear, as rather a bore, and most men would as lief listen to a Patagonian poem as read the finest oration of a Peruvian statesman. But we venture to suggest a departure from this mood to-day, in favor of the correspondence which we publish between our Commissioner in Paraguay, Mr. J. B. Bowlin, and his dear friend President Captain-General Urquiza, of the Argentine Confederation. In this interesting series of compositions the condor of the Andes and the eagle of the Alleghanies are gloriously visible,

"Sailing with supreme domain
Through the azure deep of air."

Scream answers to scream with majestic reverberation, and a new feeling of sympathy with our sub-tropical and South-temperate brethren can hardly fail to be kindled in our breasts when we find how slight a difference there is betwixt their sonorous tweedle-dum, and our mellifluous tweedle-dee. If Urquiza opens most liberally with his admiration of the "high and noble intentions," and the "collossal aggrandizement" of the "great American Power," Bowlin soon claims our suffrages for the almost fatherly tenderness he displays towards our "adopted son," the Argentine Confederation, of which he ecstatically predicts that it will "one day become an example to the whole world of intelligent free industry," (oh, Abolitionist Bowlin!) "and of general happiness as well as of material prosperity." But like his prototype, the Hon. Elijah Pogram, Bowlin is never fully himself till he gets into personalities; and the race of compliment between himself and Urquiza is the finest stretch of the whole contest. Urquiza pushes well for the winning-post when he declares that the "eloquent words" of Bowlin's "remarkable address to President Lopez had fortified the hopes which he (Urquiza) had conceived of wonderful things to come when he first "had the honor of appreciating the noble personal qualities" of his Excellency Bowlin. It was a good stroke, too, to say that the peace settlements had confirmed Urquiza's views of Bowlin's "elevated gifts," and to lay all other Powers and Plenipotentiaries a smoking sacrifice at Bowlin's feet by sarcastically declaring that all would be serene in South America if some other "Powers would let their choice of envoys fall on such upright and noble personages" as Bowlin.

But Bowlin is not to be easily beaten. His home "is in the setting sun," he is a "brown forester," and up to all emergencies. "If I am all that," he virtually replies to Urquiza, "you're another, and more too!" "If the United States are lucky, (and I don't say they are not,) in possessing a Bowlin, who combines the subtlety of a Machiavelli with the simplicity of a St. Francis Xavier, what can I say of the Argentine Republic, blessed by Heaven with an Urquiza, who combines the daring courage of a warrior with the prudent wisdom of a statesman, and is at once the Napoleon and the William Pitt of his age."

The South Americans have a good gift of the gab, but they are no match for our Pograms and our Bowlins. Bowlin and Urquiza were to celebrate Washington's birthday together over a good dinner. What imagination can represent to itself the pyrotechnic magnificence of such an occasion; the intellectual embracings, the oratorical benedictions, the reciprocal cataracts of that auspicious occasion?

In the mere matter of business talent and diplomatic shrewdness it is just possible that Urquiza may have got the better of Bowlin, or Bowlin got the better of him in magnanimous rhapsody. But what of that? If Urquiza contrived to make Bowlin's peace for him, pocketing a handsome commission of influence for the Argentine Confederation and reputation for himself by the operation, at least Bowlin's peace was made. In Bowlin's own hands the thing might and probably would have ended differently, with less glory and more gunpowder. So that on the whole, having one high-pinnacled Pogram the more, and one Paraguayan war the less, we have every reason to wish our self-sacrificing friend Urquiza all joy of his little mission up the river. We would not for the world have him strip himself "of the precious glory of that part which he attributes to himself in the happy result," merely because it was Bowlin who had "delicately offered him the opportunity of being useful." By no means. Bowlin was so busy drinking in Urquiza's high and honied words that he never suspected, doubtless to this day never has suspected, how extremely "useful" the astute Captain-general did make himself—to Paraguay and the Argentine Confederation!

The Susquehanna Railroad Grant.—The Legislature passed a bill giving $200,000 out of the State Treasury to the Company which proposes to build a Railroad from Albany to Binghamton, through Schoharie, Otsego and other counties. The Tribune on Saturday rejoiced in this donation, on the ground that the section of country which the road would traverse

"has thus far contributed to enrich other sections, but has itself been secluded and relatively damaged by our Public Works. Thousands of its inhabitants never yet saw a train of cars. We hope they may see them ere long, and without having to leave home for the purpose."

It is undoubtedly desirable that every person in the State should be able to look out of his window and see a "train of cars;"—but we do not perceive the duty of the State to secure him that gratification at the public expense. In the early days of Railroads the State was beguiled into lending money to the Hudson and Berkshire and to the Erie Roads;—but her experience then has made her wiser, and it has of late years been regarded as the settled policy of the State to leave the construction of roads exclusively to individual enterprise.

It is very extraordinary moreover that the Legislature should select a time for abandoning this policy when the treasury is bankrupt, donations to charities wholly cut off or greatly reduced, portions of the public debt unprovided for, the State tax largely increased, the State works unfinished, and the whole State groaning under complaints of poverty and taxation. Whatever motives led to the passage of the bill, we are glad to see that they were lost upon Gov. Morgan, who promptly returned it to the Legislature with his objections.

The Legislature.—The State Legislature will, probably, adjourn to-day. It has already remained in session longer, after the expiration of its hundred days, than any of its predecessors. There are several bills of importance to be acted on—the New-York Charter, the Railroad grants, the Quarantine bill and the Canal Draft bill among them. The Legislature is more careful in regard to its action than usual; and we have confidence that it will not sanction any measures very flagrantly unjust.

More Truth than Wit.—The funny Editor of the Evening Post is responsible for the following:

Newspaper Enterprise.—A large quantity of the news in some of the morning papers is obtained by Post.

That is quite true. In fact, nearly all the news of the morning papers is generally "obtained" by the Post of the next evening, though frequently it is nearly a week before it discovers it.

Academy of Music.

The very great success which attended Mme. Gazzaniga's performances last week has led to a slight protraction of her engagement. She will appear twice more, and then return to Europe. To-night the "Traviata" will be repeated, with Signor Stefani as Alfredo. This favorite tenor will contribute in no small degree to the enjoyability of the evening.

Accurate Journalism.—In the report of the Sickles trial as published in the Herald, the name of John Graham is uniformly stricken out, and "Counsel for the defence" substituted. The reason of this is found in the fact that some years since, Mr. Graham and the editor of the Herald had a personal difficulty in Broadway. Since that time the Herald's reports have been regularly mutilated, so as to prevent its readers from knowing that there is such a man as Mr. Graham in existence! This is a specimen of high-toned and conscientious journalism, in which the public interest is steadily sacrificed to the private resentments of the editor.

CITY INTELLIGENCE

Trial Trip of the Pei-ho.—This new side-wheel steamer, which has just been completed for Mr. Paul S. Forbes, of the firm of Russell & Co., in China, made a final trial trip on Friday, preparatory to starting for her destination in China. The Pei-ho, so named from one of the rivers of China, was modeled and built by Mr. Thomas Colyer, but superintended in all her details by Capt. M. L. Potter from the time her keel was laid until she was launched. She is considered one of the finest-modeled and most thoroughly-constructed steamers which has been built at this port. Her dimensions are as follows: Length, 230 feet; breadth, 32 feet; depth of hold, 16 feet—being about 1,150 tons register. Her engines were designed by Myers Conyell, and built by Messrs. Quintard & Whitney, of the Morgan Iron Works. They are two oscillating cylinders, each of 52 inches diameter and 8 feet stroke, having Pierson's surface condensers and Winter's patent rotary adjustible-valve gear attached. The latter portion of the machinery was greatly admired for the regularity and perfection of its working. The engines are a duplicate of those of the Yank-tse-Kiang, with the addition of blower-engines, which perfectly ventilate the fire-room, and, at the same time, supply the necessary draft to the furnaces; they cost about $90,000, and the whole vessel about $165,000. The joiner work was done by Mr. Andrew Mills, and she is supplied with Thomas Wesp's water-tight bulkheads, which protect the ship in case of marine accident. The steamer left the Morgan Iron Works about 9 o'clock A. M., and proceeded down the Bay, and some twenty miles outside of Sandy Hook, the engines working very satisfactorily and the steamer making about fifteen miles an hour, the engines making only 14 to 16 revolutions. She is expected to sail for China on Saturday, the 23d inst.

Tammany Society—Election of Sachems.—The members of Tammany Society met at the Westchester House, on Saturday night, for the purpose of hearing the report of the Committee appointed to nominate Sachems. Isaac V. Fowler occupied the Chair. The Committee made the following nominations, which were indorsed. For Sachems: Jonathan Trotter, Joan Kelly, Wilson Small, Nelson J. Waterbury, Thos. J. Barr, Henry Vanderwater, Richard B. Connolly, Douglas Taylor, Joseph D. Baldwin, Wm. Sinner, John Wheeler, James Murphy, Thomas Wheelan. For Secretary, Casper C. Childs; Treasurer, Josiah W. Brown; Sagamore, George S. Meserve; Wiskinkie, Stephen C. Duryea.

City Mortality.—The City Inspector reports that there were 401 deaths in the City during the past week, an increase of 23 over the mortality of the previous week, but 65 less than occurred during the corresponding week of last year. The ages of 219 of those who died did not in any case exceed 10 years, and 48 of the whole number were inmates of public institutions. One hundred and thirty died of diseases of the lungs and throat, and 88 of diseases of the brain and nerves. Of the number, 283 were natives of the United States; 72 of Ireland; 22 of Germany; 12 of England.

Wild Bull loose.—An infuriated bull, which had broken loose from his keeper, on Saturday made his appearance in Second-avenue. He spread terror among the pedestrians. He ran against a lady and stepped upon her, injuring her severely. Soon after, he caught one John Coyle on his horns and gave him a toss in the air. John landed on the top of some barrels, and was a good deal frightened, but only slightly hurt. After a while the Police captured the brute with a lasso, and put an end to his mad pranks by lodging him in—a slaughter-house.

St. Luke's Hospital.—Bishop Southgate, at the Church of the Holy Communion, made an appeal last evening in behalf of St. Luke's Hospital. The Junior Association, before whom the sermon was preached, raised $115 among themselves previous to the service, and at the conclusion of the discourse a collection was taken up amounting to $65. This Institution was opened on the 13th of May last, has supported regularly some 33 patients, and a total of 160. It is located in Fifty-fourth-street, near Fifth-avenue, and is wholly dependant upon the offerings of the benevolent for its support.

Lectures.—Mr. Lord lectures on Lord Bacon this evening taking a view of his character quite the opposite of that given by Macaulay. The lecture will be well worth hearing.

IMPORTANT FROM ALBANY.

Veto of the "Interest Bill" and the Susquehanna and Albany Railroad Appropriation—What Bills are Approved—Stirring Times at the Capitol.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Albany, Saturday, April 16, 1859.

Saturday is naturally a dreary day in Albany, the foreign lobby disappearing and leaving the streets, hotels and halls desolate. But Albany, this Saturday, swarms with a buzzing, angry crowd. The anxiety of those whose bills had been urged through at last, is converted into wrath. The veto of the Interest bill affects every corner and cranny of the State, and out of every cranny there is an indignant representative from the affected muttering revenge. The Susquehanna veto is taken more quietly, for it was a measure that the venerable Mr. St. John had got through without any lobby aid, and though it was a big thing to the locality through which the road runs, the "hounds" had never enjoyed the scent. The veto does no political damage, except, perhaps, to lose to the Republican Party a Senator and two or three Assemblymen next year. But the other cuts a slice out from the flesh of thousands of Republican voters, arrays the Canal men into hostility and breeds infinite confusion.

There is very little said about adjournment yet. The Senate has indeed resolved if the Assembly consent to adjourn at 10 P. M. to-day. It is doubtful if the Assembly would concur, though if they do not, it is doubtful if by Monday either the Supply Bill or the Appropriation can find a quorum for their passage.

In Assembly the early morning was passed reading bills:

The N. Y. Protestant Episcopal Public School (Senate bill) was passed, ayes 69.

The Senate act relieving the family of Judge Mullet was passed, ayes 73, noes 6.

The Brooklyn Water and Sewerage bills are passed—beyond any danger of loss. The Governor can't veto them.

The repeal of the People's Law and Relief charter was passed, ayes 76, noes 2, and has gone to the Governor.

The bill to give to the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad Company $200,000 was sent back without approval this morning by the Governor upon several grounds. This class of appropriations has been heretofore granted through medium of loans of the State credit, accompanied by an assumed security of mortgages against the property of the Company, conditioned for the payment of the interest and ultimate redemption of the sums for which the State was pledged. The Governor quotes the following clause of the Constitution as in the way of the bill: "The credit of the State shall not in any way or manner be given or loaned to or in aid of any individual, association or corporation." The bill does not indicate the source whence the money appropriated by it is to be drawn. Moreover, he thinks it a two-third bill, while it was passed as a majority bill. The financial condition of the State the Governor then reviews, and urges that in this position of affairs new objects of charity and appropriations should not be granted.

Mr. Bingham and others pitched into the veto. The vote on passing the bill over the veto stood ayes, 47, noes, 42.

Very soon after another veto came in, vetoing the "Act to provide for the payment of interest on the drafts and certificates of the Canal Commissioners in certain cases." The practice of allowing interest on drafts was first initiated in 1858. This bill limits in no respect the period during which interest is to be paid.

It initiates a species of State Scrip hitherto unknown. The apparent concession in the bill of the impropriety of drawing drafts on an empty Treasury is neutralized by that section which permits the Canal Commissioners or the Engineer in charge to "certify the amount due the contractor for work done and materials furnished, or for any award made for land taken or damages sustained." These certificates are raised to an equivalent with the highest stocks of the State, with six per cent interest guaranteed on them.

It was because the bill under consideration was entirely wanting in the provisions of the bill of 1858, because it furnished no safeguards against abuse, nor even against the payment of interest already discharged; because it recognized and sanctioned a new form of State indebtedness and placed it upon a level with the constitutional obligations of the State, and because its practical operation would prove subversive of that public confidence upon which we must repose for the means of completing the Canals that his Excellency felt constrained to withhold his approval from this bill. Pending the consideration of the paper the House took a recess to 3½ P. M.

The Senate has non-concurred in the passage of the Lefferts' Park (Brooklyn) bill, and the act amending the act providing for the Incorporation of Insurance Companies, passed 1853.

The Tax Levy was amended by inserting:

For judgments	$850,000
For Commissioners of Records	250,000
For judgments and claims against, or expenses incurred by officers of the Corporation in defence of their official acts	20,000
For improving the exterior and grounds of Free Academy	1,000

Also inserting:

For any person who was a member of the Police force on the 15th day of April, 1857, may have and maintain an action against the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, for any sum due him for salary since that time, and who may recover judgment therefor.....

So the Lowber judgment is, after all, in the Tax Levy.

All the rest of the Senate's time, since my last, has been spent upon the Supply bill—in almost every instance increasing rather than decreasing the items. As soon, last evening, as it was known that the House had refused to pass the Quarantine Removal bill, or even to drag it out where the light could shine upon it, unless with it came a provision for the satisfaction of justice for the arsons at Seguine's Point and Castleton, the Senate inserted in the Supply bill $250,000 for Removal purposes under the Law of 1857. This very proper appropriation will be desperately fought in the House; still, I rather think it can carry. The only objection is, that it removes Quarantine under the threats of Staten Island, and without any atonement on her part for her glaring offences against law and order. But I do not think that the House will insist on punishing New-York and Brooklyn for the sins of Staten Island. The Removal is a public necessity and good policy. The appropriation of $250,000 under the stringent restrictions of the existing law, would doubtless purchase Sandy Hook and remove Quarantine to it within one year,—while not a dollar of stealing could be done. Staten Island is punished by the refusal of her unanimous petition; her urgent prayer for a fixed day beyond which no yellow-fever patient could be landed on the Island is denied; her Representative's pet is strangled just as it began to run alone. The passage of the two bills, to which the Removal was made contingent, would not punish them a tenth part as much. Moreover, when the property is sold under the existing laws, neither George Law nor Mr. Vanderbilt, nor any company of speculators, can buy it up in large lots—it is to be retailed and not wholesaled, and every guard is put upon the expenditure that prudence could require. Now, if the $250,000 is left in the Supply bill, the port of New-York may be relieved of the vicinity of its great pest-house, and justice, law and order vindicated, for the most serious obstacles to the removal in 1857 are removed, unless we are to discredit the information that issues from the highest authorities here.

The Governor has approved the following bills:

The Central Park amendment and regulation.

Amending the act of 1858, to prevent the issue of false receipts, and to punish fraudulent transfers of property by warehousemen.

Amending the act of 1858, removing obstructions from Harlem River and for the free bridge.

The Newburgh Excise bill.

Altering the Map of New-York City.

The Hon. Richard Cobden, of England, was the distinguished visitor in the House to-day. He was invited to the freedom of the Chamber during his tarry in Albany, and was a great Hon.

Mr. Spinola still remains under arrest. That is to say, he does not visit the Senate Chamber, and is not likely to apologize, and so be eligible to a seat this session in the circle.

The Sanitary bill may even yet be called up for a final passage, but the prospects are clouded. The City Railroads may possibly pass if the Legislature holds together till Wednesday, but probably the bottom of that measure has fallen out. The Charter there is far more hope of. Let schemers learn not to ask too much. Those railroad fellows have only themselves to blame for their loss. When they found a majority pledged to go them in the House, they violated their own implied pledges, stuck in the extension clause, which let them ramble all over creation and "railed Broadway" to a certainty, and disgusted their best friends. If they had been decently modest, we should have had three City railroads by this time, &c.

GLAUCUS.

Bills Remaining Unsigned After the Adjournment, &c.

Albany, Saturday, April 16.

The Governor will endeavor to sign all the bills before the adjournment of the Legislature, but from the best legal advice he has no doubt of his constitutional power to sign them after the adjournment, at least for ten days.

The Governor has signed the Harlem Railroad bill.

The report in a New-York morning paper that Senators Mather and Ely were put under arrest, is entirely without foundation.

The Governor has also signed the following bills: The Inebriate Asylum bill; the one and one-eighth million Tax bill; the bill giving Notaries the power of Commissioners of Deeds.

IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

The Recognition of the Juarez Government.

Address of Minister McLane and Reply of President Juarez.

EVENTS AT THE CAPITAL.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEDNESDAY, April 6, 1859.

The deed is done. Mr. McLANE, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States, has recognized BENITO JUAREZ and his Government as the Government de jure and de facto of Mexico, presented his credentials, and is now the accredited Resident Minister from the United States to this Republic. After making himself acquainted with the condition of affairs in this country, so far as facilities at this point enabled him, Mr. McLANE presented his credentials to President JUAREZ, with a most decided and hearty recognition of his Government.

That the people and Government of the United States will accord to Mr. McLANE wisdom, decision and firmness in this most important act, and that he will be fully sustained by his countrymen and Government, there can scarcely be a doubt. The important consequences to both Republics that must follow this friendly union on the common ground of Constitutional Freedom, cannot at the present time be estimated. The most cordial relations are now established between the United States and the masses of Mexico. A spirit calculated to allay the anarchy that prevails within the borders of the latter State will prevail. The friends of Constitutional Freedom will gain strength and conquer. Liberal commercial treaties will be made, the door to friendly and profitable intercourse between the two Republics will be opened, and private and national fillibustering will cease.

The ceremony of presenting credentials, and recognition between President JUAREZ and Minister McLANE, was characterized by an impromptu demonstration unusual on such occasions. This took place at 1 o'clock to-day. A body of the regular army escorted President JUAREZ, with his principal civil and military officers, to the Palacia Municipal, situated on the Plaza, opposite Mr. McLANE's quarters. The American Minister, attended by his Secretary, HENRY B. LA RENTREE, and C. LE DOUX ELGER, attaché, with a suite composed of R. B. J. TROYMAN, United States Consul at Vera Cruz; Capt. JARVIS, of the Savannah; Capt. ZARRAGUT, of the Brooklyn; Col. JOHNSON, U. S. Army; EDWARD E. DUNBAR, of Arizona; JASPER WHITING, of Sonora, and Messrs. LA SERE and PERRY, of New-Orleans, proceeded from the Minister's quarters to one of the long and beautiful rooms of the Palacia, where the Mexican President and his officials were in waiting.

Mr. McLANE then addressed the President as follows:

Mr. PRESIDENT: In delivering this letter of credence, authorizing me to reside near the Government of the Republic of Mexico as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States, I avail myself of the opportunity to convey to you the assurance that the President of the United States and the people thereof, cherish an earnest interest in the welfare and prosperity of the Republic of Mexico.

I hope your Excellency's administration of public affairs may be signalized by the consummation and consolidation of the great principles of constitutional freedom which constitute the fundamental element of true liberty and distinguish the Republics of Mexico and the United States from most of the great states and empires of the Eastern Hemisphere.

Your Excellency's enlightened patriotism and devotion to true principles are fully appreciated by the people and Government of the United States, and it will be my constant duty to manifest the same sentiment in my intercourse with your Excellency, that the Governments of the two Republics may continue to cherish loyal respect and friendship for each other, and that our respective countries may illustrate in their history and progress the complete triumph of Constitutional liberty.

Mr. McLANE read this address first in English, then in Spanish.

President JUAREZ replied as follows:

Mr. MINISTER.—It is highly agreeable and satisfactory to me to receive at the hands of your Excellency, those credentials by which the President of the United States authorizes the residence of your Excellency in the Republic of Mexico as the representative of the government and people of those States, which assures me of the friendly feelings they entertain for the prosperity of this Republic.

I shall endeavor to merit the confidence that your Excellency manifests in the ability of my administration to consonate between us those great principles of Constitutional liberty—principles which distinguish us from many of the older nations.

I can assure you that Mexico has now entered the happy path, from which, it is to be hoped, she will never deviate in the future, since those functionaries and chiefs, who to-day support the Constitutional Government, have cast aside all petty interests and personal aspirations, and consecrated themselves to Constitutional liberty, the holy cause of nations.

I shall endeavor to reciprocate the kind sympathy with which the United States have honored me, and the manifestation of friendship and justice your wise and illustrious President has this day given to Mexico. With your Excellency, I desire and hope that the Governments of both Republics may continue and extend a loyal friendship, which consulting and harmonizing their interests, may make fruitful the triumph of Constitutional Liberty.

Other nations will follow the good example of the two Republics, and unite with the United States and Mexico in securing the peace of the world and the uninterrupted progress of humanity.

The scene was in the highest degree solemn and impressive. The historical interest attached to the place where the great fillibuster CORTEZ commenced his career of conquest, the fair Anglo-Saxon, face to face with the swarthy Toltec, both standing on the common platform of religion, education and constitutional freedom, and recognizing each other in the bonds of peace and friendship on behalf of their respective countries, combined to form one of those romantic and important events upon which the history of the country is based.

Amid the firing of cannon, martial music, the ringing of bells and joyous shouts of the populace, the ceremony was concluded.

Great results arising from this step on the part of Mr. McLANE must not be expected immediately. The Liberal Party has yet much to do in order to obtain full and undisputed sway. The country is weak and feeble from long-continued civil conflicts. But the way is now opened for us to enter, and from this day dates the birth of an American party in Mexico, destined to become supreme.

THURSDAY, April 7.

Since the departure of the Quaker City on the 15th inst., no news of a very decided character has been received from the interior. Advices from the City of Mexico are to the 4th inst. They represent DEGOLLADO as in possession of Chapultepec and Tacubaya, and closely pressing the seige of the City of Mexico. Orders have been dispatched to all parts for the Liberal troops to concentrate at that point. ZULOAGA is said to have about five thousand troops in the city, and affairs there are represented as quite distressing. Generals ANPUDIA and TRACONIS have concentrated their forces (about 4,000) at Los Cumbres, or mountain summits between Orizaba and the City of Mexico, to prevent the passage of MIRAMON to the latter place. Last accounts from MIRAMON represent that he reached Orizaba with such troops as had not deserted. Advices of some decisive results may be received at any moment, or affairs may continue in this uncertain state for weeks.

Mons. GABRIAC, the French Minister, displays an active partisanship in favor of ZULOAGA; and Mr. OTWAY, the English Minister, it would appear, has somewhat unwittingly cooperated with him. The course pursued by these officials is strongly condemned by their countrymen. The war ships of their respective nations remain quiet, not evincing any disposition to take part for either side.

The Tennessee arrived on the morning of the 4th, bringing fifteen passengers. Among them was Col. JOHNSON, of the United States army, whose purposes are unknown. But it is supposed he intends to proceed to make a survey of the northern provinces of Mexico for the purpose of selecting the best positions for forts.

President JUAREZ gave a State dinner to the American Minister to-day. Many prominent chiefs of the Liberal Party were present. The American Army and Navy were, I may say, nobly represented by Col JOHNSON and Captains JARVIS and FARRAGUT. Other American citizens were present, and the affair was very thoroughly impregnated with sentiments of friendship and patriotism.

There are in the harbor at the present time six English men-of-war, four French, two American, one Prussian, and one Mexican screw-steamer, which latter, I judge, is anchored by the stern, as her bow invariably points in a direction contrary to that of every other vessel in the harbor. MITLA.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS—APRIL 16.

Before Justice Strong.

Matter of Marian Walker.—This is a habeas corpus on behalf of a mother to obtain possession of her child. The facts were reported in the TIMES of April 6 and 8. To-day a motion was made to strike out part of the return, and also to award the custody of the child to the mother. On the return, after argument, the Justice said he would deny the motion, and that they might file their traverse, and on Wednesday try the facts. If the defendants proved their allegations, he would not change the custodian of the child.

Petition of Jacob Desch vs. Laurens Bauries and three wives.—These persons were arrested some time ago, convicted at the Special Sessions for keeping a house of prostitution on the Eighth avenue and sent up to Blackwell's Island. They were to-day brought up on a habeas corpus and discharged on bail and recognizance to defend the cause in the General Sessions.

George Fisher vs. Joseph C. Fisher.—Upon the whole evidence I think the allowances made by the referee are just and in my opinion none of the exceptions are well taken. Exceptions overruled and motion to confirm report granted with $10 costs.

SUPERIOR COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Moncrief.

Edward B. Humphrey vs. Julius Sampson.—Motion denied, papers in Clerk's office.

Fond Recollections.

BY A TENDER "HART."

My grandpapa owned a most wonderful bird,
Which was named "Killaloo," as often I've heard;
His voice was as sweet as a mackerel's tail,
And from his large throat there oft came a gale
Of music delicious.

His eyes were like diamonds besprinkled with mud,
And "Cornish" tobacco he chewed for his "cud,"
His cheeks were as red as a beautiful rose
Brought on by good whisky—I'd rather suppose
Very agreeable.

For singing and dancing he had quite an ear,
And his whole recollection was strikingly clear,
Upon all sorts of subjects, from begs to a myth,
And a great friend of the venerable SMITH
AND HIS BROTHERS.

This bird is now dead as a big piece of lead,
And is being conveyed to the grave;
His face is quite white, and "nary a red"
Was expended to honor the brave
Old "Killaloo."

I'll go round to Smiths' and buy a black suit—
A new vest or pants, a coat or surtout—
And remember the bird, the beautiful bird,
Whose musical voice will ne'er more be heard
This side of SMITHS'.

Messrs. S. C. Herring & Co.

No. 251 Broadway, New-York:

GENTS.—In justice to the merit and virtue of Herring's Patent Fire Proof Safes, we would inform you that on the 31st day of January last, our warehouse, wharf and store, were entirely destroyed by fire.

Fortunately we had our principal books, papers and a large amount of money secured in one of your Safes, which, although it was exposed to the most intense heat for upwards of five hours, surrounded by the most fierce and consuming fire, and putting your Safe to the most severe test as to its fire-proof qualities, we are happy to say it proved itself worthy of the highest recommendation. Our books, papers, &c., which it contained, were preserved uninjured.

We gladly and gratefully tender our testimonial to the many already published, toward giving the Herring Safe the credit and confidence it truly merits. Very respectfully, TEASEDALE & REID.

Catarrh! Catarrh! Catarrh!
CATARRH. WHAT IS IT? HOW CURED?

Thousands of persons suffer all sorts of annoyance from Catarrh. Most people know what its inconvenience and results are, yet but few know how it can be cured. It is simply a chronic irritation and after enlargement of follicles, and consequent thickening of the mucous membrane, lining the nasal cavities, fronted sinuses and posterior nares and sometimes extending into the throat and lungs. From this results tightness and often vertigo of the head, obstructed nose or profuse flow of mucus, loss of smell, nasal voice, and often impaired hearing and taste. The old-school remedies have never been able to do anything for it. Nasal injections and inhalations are as painful and expensive as they are generally worthless. Yet HUMPHREYS' CATARRH SPECIFIC, a simple SUGAR PILL taken two or three times per day, promptly relieves the milder cases, cures at once all colds in the head, and radically cures by persevering use the most obstinate cases, as is proved by the experience of hundreds.

Price, with full directions, &c.....50 cents per box

R. R. R.
COMMON SENSE MEDICATION,

To administer drastic cathartics in Diarrhœa or Dysentery is absurd as reasonable as it would be to rub a raw wound with a nutmeg grater. The result in both cases must necessarily be increased inflammation. In all acute diseases of the bowels, the first thing to be done is to administer a counter-irritant, and RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is the best and safest in the world. The profession may say purge! purge!! purge!!! but common sense says soothe the irritated surfaces, regulate the secretions, equalize the circulation. This is the true course in Fevers of every description, remittent, intermittent, and of the more dangerous types. The Reliefand Regulating Pills are all-sufficient in such cases; in fact every species of active inflammation is removed by their combined operations. Persons exposed to malarious poisons, either in the form of Cholera, Dysentery, Flux, Bilious Colic, Billious Fever, Fever and Ague, Yellow, Typhoid or Congestive Fever, will positively escape illness if they take the precaution to fortify their systems with Radway's Ready Relief, and regulate the organs of their bodies with Radway's Regulating Pills. Bear in mind you cannot have Pain, never can remain sick under the treatment of Radway's Ready Relief and Regulating Pills.

R. R. R. remedies sold by druggists and merchants everywhere.

RADWAY & Co., No. 162 Fulton-st., New-York; after May 1, No. 23 John-st.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE.

We are sorry to perceive that dealers have stooped to the unfairness of attempting to deprive Messrs. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO. of the just reward of their skill and enterprise. An article is offered in the market as the justly celebrated and very valuable COCOAINE, while it is quite another affair, made in New-York, and called, to avoid a positive imitation, "Cocoine."

This is a poor subterfuge, and should not be suffered to be practiced to the injury of the very respectable and responsible gentlemen who have devoted so much time, care and capital to inventing and making known the genuine article.—Boston Post.

$1.000 REWARD WILL BE PAID ON the conviction of any one counterfeiting Dr. TOBIAS' VENETIAN LINIMENT. It is warranted to cure croup and dysentery, colic, sore throat, toothache, pains of all kinds, and chronic rheumatism, quicker than any other remedy, or no pay. Sold by all the druggists at 25 and 50 cents. Depôt, No. 56 Cortlandt-st.

M., on the premises, by order of Thomas Theall, Esq., Executor, the estate of the late Billa Theall, ¾ of a mile from Rye Depot, Westchester County, adjoining the country seats of D. C. Kingsland, Wm. B. Van Rensselaer and Dr. Hosack, 25 acres. The property can be divided into a number of plots, having a fine building site on each, with a splendid view of the sound and adjoining country. The house is 2-story and attic, handsomely situated and well shaded. Also, at the same time and place, a plot of about 40 acres, on the North street road, 1 mile from the depot, adjoining the country seats of the Messrs. Macy, Abbott, Palmer and Drake. There is a magnificent view of the Sound from this property, and the location is in every respect, desirable. Terms easy. Full particulars can be obtained at the office of the Auctioneer, No. 43 Wall-st., Jauncey-court.

FOR SALE OR TO LET.—A COUNTRY seat on the sea shore, at Rye, for sale on favorable terms; one of the most desirable Summer residences in this favorite town, situated on the Sound and easy territory to the place, which is distant only 30 feet from the dwelling; the dwelling stands on an eminence 75 feet above the water, and commands an uninterrupted view of the Sound for 20 miles. Being an elevated situation on a clean rocky shore, it is one of the most healthy places in the State, and is never subject to mosquitoes or fever and ague; one house's side from the City by New-Haven Railroad, and five minutes' ride from the Rye depot; ground completely graded, and many fruit and ornamental trees planted; walls and fences all new; house new and handsomely finished, with a large new stable, bath-house, &c.; situation for boating, fishing and bathing unsurpassed. The place was laid out, and the buildings erected for the present owner, who now offers the property for sale only in consequence of change of business, requiring him to be absent several years from the country. Address Box No. 4,618 Post-Office, New-York.

COUNTRY RESIDENCE.—FOR SALE, AT Cordham, Westchester County, the residence lately occupied by Dr. Walsh, and built by him for his own occupancy. The house is about 32x36, built by days' work in the most substantial manner, filled in with brick, and has marble mantels throughout. The carriage-house and out-buildings are ample and a portion of the grounds in perfect order. The grounds contain between 4 and 5 acres, and are highly improved with a great variety of fruit and ornamental trees. The house commands an extensive view on all sides, from East River to the Palisades. It is but half a mile from Fordham Station on Harlem Railroad, and but 15 miles from the City. It will be sold for $11,000 and a portion of the purchase money may remain on bond and mortgage. Apply to A. R. WALSH, No. 211 Pearl-st., or to Dr. JAMES McMULLAN, on the premises.

COUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE IN Greenwich, Conn., about 30 miles from this City. The house is commodious and pleasantly situated and commands an extensive view of Long Island Sound. It is from one half to three-fourths of a mile from the station on the New Haven railway, and at a convenient distance from the Churches and the Academy. On the place, which embraces more than two acres of land, there are a good barn, garden and orchard.

Established in 1836, for the Preservation of Human Life. PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated not less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; it roots out the poisonous taint the blood is sure to absorb unless this remedy is used. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for nothing, that treats of the evil effects of early abuse and indulgence, is embellished with elaborate colored engravings, having every feature and phase of disease, exposes the fallacy of the ordinary modes adopted for the cure of local as well as hereditary maladies, and gives the only safe and infallible remedy for expunging every trace of the virus from the system.

DR. WATSON HAS, FOR A LONG SERIES of years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated a vast number of cases with a success which has won for him the confidence of the public. The remedies are mild, and there is no interruption to business. Dr. WATSON receives patients in separate consulting rooms from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M., at No. 459 Broome-st., second block west of Broadway, c
Dr. Watson's Work, THE CAUSE AND CURE, issued simultaneously in London and New York, is the only one which clearly explains the nature and mode of treatment of the VENEREAL DISEASES in all its different forms and treats also in full of SPERMATORRHŒA, the result of early indiscretion, excess, or other causes. Anatomical plates of a superior kind, and drawings of every form of disease. Price, $1, post-paid. "Dr. Watson's Work has been written by a person of great practical knowledge, and we cordially recommend it."—Medical Journal. Sold by the Author, as above; also by
CHAS. MILLER, No. 436 Broadway, New-York.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT TO BOTH SEXES.—MARRIED AND SINGLE, IN HEALTH OR DISEASE.—DR. LAMONT'S PARIS, LONDON AND NEW-YORK MEDICAL ADVISER AND MARRIAGE GUIDE. 30th edition. Over 400 pages, 12mo. cloth, about one hundred electrotyped engravings. Price $1. Sold also by W. A. Townsend & Co., No. 46 Walker-st., near Broadway. Among its contents is the acute by of the sexual organs of the male and female, all their diseases and weaknesses; latest discoveries in reproduction; European Hospital practice: quacks, (advertising) their recipes and specifics; the author's unequaled Paris and London treatment. At No. 647 Broadway, up stairs, three blocks above St. Nicholas Hotel, New-York, from 10 A. M. to 1, and 5 to 8 evenings.
"We concur with other papers in recommending Dr. Larmont and his work."—Courrier des Etats Unis, German Die Reform, Sunday Dispatch, Staats Zeitung, National Democrat, Day Book, Essex Standard, Rahway Advocate, Empire City, Police Gazette, New-York Pick. New-Brunswick Times, Mercury, Atlas, &c.

CONFIDENTIAL MEDICAL AND SURGICAL CONSULTATIONS.—Dr. COBBETT can be consulted with confidence on private diseases, at his old established office, No. 19 Duane-st., opposite Chatham Bank. Dr. C. has practised as above for over 27 years, and has treated with success cases which had been given up and considered incurable by Physicians of respectable standing in the profession. Stricture and nervous debility treated on an entirely new plan. N. B.—Dr. C. is a member of the New-York University Medical College and College of Surgeons, London. His diplomas from each of the above institutions may be seen in his office. The victims of misplaced confidence, or those who have been deceived by quack advertisements, nostrums, &c., &c., can call on him with the certainty of being honorably treated.

DR. WARD, NO. 486 BROADWAY, PERforms the only permanent and satisfactory cure of private diseases. Remember, all afflicted, that by consulting Dr. WARD you may immediately experience that Richard's himself again. Unfortunate's Friend and other remedies, $1. Female diseases successfully treated. His monthly Pills, $1 per box, never fail of effect intended. Try them, all ladies in certain situations. Office No. 486 Broadway, corner Broome st.—so arranged that patients never meet. Afflicted call immediately. No charge for consultation. Attendance till 10 P. M.

TO PUBLISHERS, PROPRIETORS OF PATENT MEDICINES AND OTHERS.—I have the names of ten thousand intelligent reading men resident all over the United States for sale. Any one who believes in the efficacy of advertising by circulars instead of newspapers, will find this a chance seldom to be met with. The names have been collected within the last three months, and never used. Address Box No. 101 Times Office,

FREIGHT AND TRAVEL.—BALTIMORE, NEW-YORK AND THE WEST AND SOUTHWEST.—The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and its fully developed connecting lines, offers a most desirable and direct route between New-York and all the cities and towns in the great West and Southwest. Freight promptly conveyed, in largest quantities and at lowest rates, and passengers—first-class and emigrant—ticketed through, with their baggage, with best speed and comfort.
This is the only line by which travelers between New-York and the West can visit Washington City. Round-trip tickets from Baltimore to Washington have been provided especially for travelers between the Eastern cities and the great West, at the largely reduced rate of but two dollars, for which sum, added to the current price of Western tickets, travelers may visit Washington on their way.
Entirely new and superior sleeping cars have been introduced on this road.
New-York Office, No. 229 Broadway, corner of Barclay-st., opposite the Astor House.
C. W. PERVEIL, Agent B. & O. Route.

THE SICKLES TRIAL.

tive communicating premeditation to the act which places the defendant at the bar of this Court. What I have said, and what I say now, and what I am prepared to say, is this: that when a husband catches an adulterer of his wife, either in the act of coition, or so near to that act as to leave no doubt of his guilt, that the frenzy which seizes on the husband is the mode which the Almighty has adopted of turning that husband into his instrument for carrying out the judgment which He has denounced against he adulterer; and if the Bible proves anything, I challenge any man who even professes a nominal belief in it to gainsay that. I say that the Almighty has made us with such instincts that there are certain provocations so operating on us as that when they do work on us we are thrown on these instincts, and that our acts become but the execution of the law of Heaven. Now I will suppose a case. We have all had mothers, and can enter into the feelings which encircle a relation of that kind. Could it be expected that a son should stand in the presence of his mother and see an indignity, whether it amounts to violence or not, offered to her? And if he rose in the midst of his feelings and slew the party who outraged the parent from whose womb he came, where is the jury that would convict him of crime in so doing? Now, what is it that justifies, what that necessitates, a slaying under such circumstances? It is the irresistible influence of that love which the great Creator has implanted even in the breast of a brute towards the parent brute that produced it. Is not that precisely the affection that identifies itself with the relation of husband and wife? And if, at the time of the indignity to that relation the party who is innocent of any participation to that indignity is so frenzied by these instincts, which are a part of him, as that he could not resist being driven on to the result that is inevitably placed before him, he thus becomes an involuntary instrument in the execution of a judgment for which, and the execution of which, he was intended by nature to be an instrument. That is the doctrine I have endeavored to speak before the Court and jury. It is unnecessary for us to insist in this case that a husband, after having discovered the fact of his wife's adultery, has a right deliberately to conclude upon and accomplish the death of the adulterer. Where the husband slays under the influence of frenzy, he slays in obedience to the will of nature. Where he slays in the possession of his faculties, he slays in obedience to his own will. Our doctrine goes to that extent, and to no greater extent. When the mind is frenzied there is no will but that which directs everything; but where the mind is in the possession of reason, then it is in possession of that will which the great Creator has vouchsafed to every mind. An effort has been made here to satisfy the Court that we are trying to throw this defence back on what is odiously called the higher law. The origin of that term is perfectly well known to all of us. It originated with some fanatics who, for the purpose of accomplishing political ends, would subvert the structure of our Government. So far as any odium is sought to be thrown on this defence by identifying it with that doctrine, we disown connection with these words; but I say that, as in the case of individuals, so in the case of communities; like individuals they are required to take the administration of the law into their own hands, and administer it for their own benefit, because those who have been confided with its administration have not been true to the duties imposed on them. Counsel here referred to the case of the Vigilance Committee of San Francisco, and proceeded: "If there are periods when, and at which, communities are justified in rising, and resenting and punishing summarily the wrongs under which they have so long groaned, I ask whether or not, in analogy to that, individuals may not at times, too, become invested with similar rights; and whether they are not entitled to rise, in the dignity of their individual natures, and resolve themselves into the instrument of Deity for the purpose of accomplishing and carrying out his ends? Counsel again quoted from the Sermon on the Mount—St. Matthew, 5th chapter, 28th verse—for the purpose of showing that the body of the wife is, to all intents and purposes, defiled by the lustful eyes of the man who lusts for her:

"But I say unto you that whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart."

So that, said he, so far as the adultery of deceased could be perfected, it was in the course of being made perfect at the very time he was met by the defendant on the occasion leading to the affray. As to the benignity of the law in allowing the defence of adultery to reduce the grade of the offence to manslaughter, counsel asked, is the law benign? Is that the mercy which the Jury are in the habit of asking when they say the Lord's Prayer? Is the law benign? Is its benignity to be found in reducing the act of the husband from murder to manslaughter when he finds his wife actually engaged in her act of shame? Is that benignity?—Is it mercy?—is it lenity? And yet the counsel for the prosecution say that when the husband catches the wife in her shame the law is benignant—then and only then. This doctrine of the prosecution was mainly based on the case of John, cited in 8th Iredell. All the remarks made there by the Court were obiter, for in that case—a slave case—the rights of the husband did not exist, the obiter dicta of Judges had been the occasion of more confusion in the law than arose from any other or all other causes. His Honor would find that that case in 8th Iredell repudiates the doctrine of moral insanity—a doctrine recognized by his Honor and all the great jurists of the country. Why, then, should it be relied on in regard to other points? What was the origin of the rule which says that, where a man catches his wife in her shame, and slays the adulterer, his offence is reduced to manslaughter? In the case in which that rule was declared, there was a special verdict made in reference to a particular state of facts; and was it to bind all other cases? The rule in the case of Maddy is reported in Hale's Pleas of the Crown, which were written in 1700. That rule was copied by Hawkins, which was written in 1724. It was again copied by Foster, and again by East. Did these writers sanction the rule? No; all they did was to refer to it, without giving it the weight of their names at all; therefore it was a mere historical fact, not indorsed by any of these authorities, that in the reign of Charles II. such a rule was declared by the Court of Queen's Bench on a particular state of facts. Was that rule to govern this case? Juries were at that time mere instruments in the hands of the Courts; jury trials were then a mockery. In this great institution, which like a mighty tree strikes its roots deep in the soil of the Constitution, to be restrained and restricted in its growth for the purpose of encircling its trunk and branches with an arbitrary rule, made under a despotic Government, and in a corrupt age? The Jury system is now developed and is perfect, and it was idle to try to apply to it the rule of two centuries since. Then the jury had no right to pass upon the motive or intention of the accused; that was kept for the decision of the Judge; but here the jury was as absolute as the Autocrat of all the Russias; His Honor could not restrain them; nothing His Honor could say should have more weight upon them, in reference at least to the facts, than what fell from the lips of the counsel. Another consideration weighing against the rule in Maddy's case was that the Judges were anxious to aggrandize and enrich the coffers of the king, and while there the prisoner was absolved from all corporal punishment, his estates passed into the king's treasury. To show that counsel was not reviling the old law, he referred to Foster on that point, page 264. There was much progress made in the law since that time. To illustrate that he referred to the difference between now and then, in regard to the plea of insanity. According to Lord Hale, nothing but a perfect extinguishment of the candle of the mind would satisfy the behests of the law in regard to irresponsibility. If the law of sanity had changed so, so had other laws changed, and as well might Hale be cited now to show that His Honor was not right in his ruling in cases of insanity, as be cited to show that it was necessary for a husband to catch his wife in the act of coition to reduce the grade of homicide to manslaughter. Besides, it was suggested to him by his colleague (Mr. Brady) that Lord Hale presided in cases of prosecution for witchcraft; therefore, he said that, non obstante Lord Hale, this question was to-day a new one. Counsel referred to the statute of James I. in regard to homicide, in reference to which statute it was held that the case of an adulterer stabbed by the husband was not within the statute, and if the husband was indicted, under that statute the Jury were directed to acquit; and so the indictment in such cases was made under the common law; Shylock-like, they secured their pound of flesh by indicting the husband under the common law, so as to get his estates for the crown. Was not this hypocrisy? Was it not such protection as the wolf gives to the lamb, covering and devouring it? It would be for his Honor to say whether this rule was to be the rule of morality and society in these days. Counsel referred to Pearson's case, in Lewis' Crown Cases, 2 C, where the Judges followed with the mostimplicit blindness everything that emanated from such a Moloch as Lord Hale. For the purpose of enforcing the right of defence to this testimony he submitted: that the Constitution of the United States, as having broken down the old system of special verdicts, arguing if the Court can dispense with a Jury it can abrogate that provision of the Constitution which provides that the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury. It is for the jury themselves, on the facts themselves, to form judgments with all the surrounding circumstances. North or South Carolina might make what laws they please for the trial of State offences, but they could not come into the Federal Courts and strike down the Constitution of the land. The learned counsel (Mr. Carlisle) said he loved North Carolina law because of its manliness of one hundred and sixty or one hundred and eighty years, and the inference was that he would rather have lived at that time; but as for himself (the counsel for the defence) he would prefer to live when he now did. [Laughter.] He would show that we are not to kneel to old idols and run after strange gods; the gods we are to worship are our household gods; we are not to run after those of other countries. The second point is this: In the present case the intention is synonymous with the state of mind, and the causes which produced the state of the mind are admissible for the purpose of illustrating the defendant's acts. In Day's case this Court received the whole narrative; you permitted the prisoner to show that his wife had a child three or four months after marriage; you permitted him to establish all the facts in evidence; and at the close of the case the effect of these facts was judged of. In Jarboe's case the same thing was allowed; the deceased seduced the prisoner's sister, under promise of marriage. Now, the door through which these facts entered in these cases is sought to be closed against us. In the case of Singleton Mercer all the facts were narrated; for the sister of Mercer was permitted to take the stand and trace out her acquaintance with Herberton. In the case of Smith, which will be found in Wharton on homicide, all the facts were permitted to be elicited; Captain Carson had absconded from his wife, and been gone two years without being heard from, and his wife married Smith. Carson turned up and claimed his wife. A contention occurred, which resulted in the second husband killing the first; all the facts were received in evidence, and the case adjudged in view of them. So in the case of Hatfield, showing that disease was produced by a wound received in battle. In all these cases, the Court permitted the party to trace out the act to the real cause—there was no limit of time. We say, in the next place, the testimony offered establishes the truth of the declaration at the time of the occurrence; that it disproves the idea of mere pretence; it goes to show that Mr. Key had drawn off Mr. Sickles' wife from her true and lawful allegiance, and that Mr. Sickles did not imagine or feign what he uttered, but uttered the real fact; that the fact existed precisely as he declared it, and he declared it because he was informed of it in such a way as to leave no doubt of its existence. On what principle, then, was the defence not entitled to it? If the defence was, that Mr. Sickles slew Mr. Key under a delusion, we would prove that he imagined the fact, and they would trace out the origin of the delusion. Now, as the law permits it to be shown that a man can become insane from real as well as imaginary causes, what difference is there in the application of the rule? In the time of Lord Erskine it was only delusion; now it is admitted man can become insane from real causes. If we can show the origin of our delusion and all the circumstances, we are not entitled to trace back the state of Mr. Sickles' mind, and all the causes which produced it, although they may be real. As it was in connection with his wife that Mr. Sickles' frenzy or temporary mental unsoundness arose, shall we not show the extent and character of Mr. Key's relation with her? Where the act of the defendant was committed under the influence of the marriage relation, and everything turns on the conduct of his wife, why should he not be permitted to avail himself of such conduct to shield himself from conviction, when the conduct of the wife was the cause of the frenzy which superinduced the act when he committed? The knowledge of the adultery of Mrs. Sickles was the propelling power, and was a part of the res gestæ. Mr. Graham then proceeded to make plain to Mr. Carlisle's mind what res gestæ is, and quoted from various authorities to show it was impossible to lay down time as to the rule of justification. All the circumstances of the case must be considered. No matter what the chasm is, if the intervening circumstances render the chasm continuous, and certain facts happening, no matter what the distance, they become a part of the facts they qualify. No matter when the adultery took place, the question is, When did it first come to his knowledge? This is the time when it took place, when the husband first heard of it. It then took place before his eyes. He was the witness of his wife's shame, and in imagination could carry himself to that period of time when on her bed she surrendered herself to the debasing lusts of Mr. Key. The effect is then produced, and that is the attitude of the defendant. He became satisfied of the fact the night before, his feelings were hovering and culminating through the night; he had no sleep, this victim of grief; there was everything to drive his excitement forward to the maddening point, and every moment he heard the story of his wife's shame, and saw the infamy before him. It was the freshness of the occurrence of the facts for which he was placed at this bar. Another foundation, another ground on which the evidence is important, is, that it explains the meaning of the waving of the handkerchief, and places the deceased in flagrante delicto at the time of his death. He then committed adultery in his heart against the prohibition of the Good Book. Now, Key had seen Mr. Sickles come from his house, and went in the direction he knew he would not encounter the husband, for the purpose of getting up an adulterous intercourse with Mrs. Sickles. Could any one doubt that this was a true explanation of the conduct of the deceased at the time? There is enough in the case already to show what the waving of the handkerchief meant. But why are we restrained from giving further evidence? Why deny the effects of this waving on the mind of the prisoner? It is testimony to which we are entitled. I ask if there is any doubt as to what the meaning of the fluttering of the handkerchief was, why not permit us to prove beyond a doubt that in response to the signal the wife was carried from the mansion of the husband to the place where the deceased was in the habit of enjoying her body? The last point is, even by the declaration of the deceased himself, the prisoner has the right to show the status of his mind and the causes which superinduced it. This Mr. Graham maintained by reference to the case of Kingvs. Whitehead, and other authorities, and quoted to show where a prisoner was permitted to prove that his participation in a criminal act was voluntary. We ask, continued Mr. Graham, to be permitted to show the slaying of Mr. Key was just as involuntary as though he was hurried on by the violence of a mob; but, instead of being an instrument of the mob, he was an instrument in the hands of his instinct, and went forward in the commission of the act. Mr. Graham quoted a case where the defence was permitted to justify by showing the declaration of an alleged thief at the time of his depositing the goods on the premises of a neighbor, and, after further quoting from precedents, added: It seems the learned counsel for the prosecution was unfortunate in distinguishing the present case from that of Jarboe; but, if the report of the case, as contained in this pamphlet is correct, it is perfectly evident that Jerboe acted on the ground that he was temporarily insane at the time of the act of slaying the seducer of his sister. This Court, in its instructions to the jury, meant the case should turn on the status of the prisoner's mind at the moment the killing occurred. It has been asked on the other side, what interest had Mr. Sickles in his wife at the time he met Mr. Key, for she then had forfeited her marriage vow? I ask, was not his grief at the pitch of despair? Mr. Sickles knew his wife had been guilty of conduct which forfeited her hold on him; he saw the man who crossed off the attachment to him; and henceforth what must have been the feelings of the man who was deprived of the richest pearl in the casket in which he had placed his jewels?

Mr. Carlisle—I have already distinctly disclaimed having entertained any such idea or used any such argument. One of the grounds upon which the proof was offered was that the deceased was at the time of his death actually proceeding to commit the crime of adultery with the prisoner's wife, and that the prisoner slew him in defence of his wife's honor, and to prevent that crime. In this connection I referred to the fact that, according to the theory of the defence, he had the day before fully ascertained that an adulterous intercourse for nearly a year had been carried on between those persons.

Mr. Graham replied—If the doctrine of the prosecution is a correct one, then we ought to stop with the Coroner's jury who found who killed Mr. Key; and, according to the prosecution, this is the only fact before the jury. A strenuous effort has been made to show the state of the prisoner's mind at the time of the killing of Mr. Key. If the intention is important, and the evidence bearing on it is proper, then it seems to me the defence is entitled to such evidence. If we are here merely to discover what the Coroner's jury found as to the killing of Mr. Key, and if this course is conclusive evidence of malice, and is admissible, then the preferment of the accusation by the Grand jury, and trial by petty jury, are unnecessary in law. But I say that every fact, whether it bears nearly or remotely to the case, is proper to be shown, to enable the jury to understand the condition of the prisoner's mind at the time of the killing. We ask you to extend the line of inquiry. If there is objection, it should have been previously urged. It was not now for the prosecution, after experimenting with us, and finding we have evidence of the adultery beyond peradventure, to deprive us, by means of technicalities, of this benefit. I ask the Court to review.

The District-Attorney replied: The grounds on which the application was made were first, that the facts recited amount to justification; second, that they amount to legal provocation; third, that they are competent evidence in connection with the question of insanity; and lastly, that they are competent evidence for the purpose of explaining the statement of the prisoner at the time of the homicide, and explaining the motives and feelings by which he was actuated. The first two grounds could be treated of at one and the same time. The questions of justification and provocation are legal questions presented to his Honor in connection with the offer of testimony. It has been said that the English rulings could not apply here, because no such state of facts existed. He conceded that the questions were the same in substance. The proposition here implied the truth of the facts offered in evidence. It was to be taken for granted by his Honor that they were true. The legal effect of those facts was to be necessarily determined by his Honor; and in that respect the Judge was performing the same functions as were imposed upon English Judges in cases of special verdicts. The question here was what was meant by the rule as laid down in the English books of authorities, in regard to the effect of adultery as justification. The prosecution here did not contend for the doctrine that the husband must witness the infidelity of his wife. They relied on the wording of the English authorities, that if a party "be found in the act of adultery," the offence of slaying the adulterer would be reduced to manslaughter. That undoubtedly was the meaning of the rule; if found in the act, the killing was manslaughter; but if the husband afterwards slays the adulterer, the act is murder. The old masters purposely use the word "find." He could imagine that if a man witness from a distance—say with a telescope—his wife's infidelity, and afterwards slay the adulterer, he would be excluded from the benefit of the rule. He had been asked to define the line of this rule. It was impossible to do so; he might with as much propriety ask the other side to define the line of what they call the husband's marital rights. The law had settled it by declaring that if there were time sufficient for the cooling of the passion, the act of killing is murder. If the rule was to be extended the length claimed by the other side, even to the case of ordinary lust, he asked what would be the state of society under such circumstances? If a man could take the life of one who had lusted for his wife, what would be the condition of society? It was not the part of the prosecution to stand up and defend adultery; it was a grievous crime, a great outrage inflicted on the rights of the husband. The question is, how a party who kill's another under such provocation is to be treated in a court of justice? It has been declared here that, inasmuch as the Good Book had declared that the adulterer should suffer death, and inasmuch as the civil law did not, the rights of the husband were remitted into his hands. He did not subscribe to any such doctrine. He would also refer to the Good Book to show what had been almost a judicial determination of this question, by the Founder of our holy religion:

Jesus went unto the mount of Olives.

And early in the morning he came again unto the temple, and all the people came unto him, and he sat down and taught them.

And the Scribes and Pharisees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery, and when they had set her in the midst.

They say unto Him, Master, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act.

Now Moses in the law, commanded us that such should be stoned; but what sayest thou?

This they said, tempting him, that they might have to accuse him. But Jesus stooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.

So when they continued asking him, he lifted up himself, and said unto them, He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.

And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground.

And they which heard it, being convicted by their own conscience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldest, even unto the last; and Jesus was left alone, and the woman standing in the midst.

When Jesus had lifted up himself and saw none but the woman, he said unto her, Woman, where are those thine accusers? hath no man condemned thee?

She said, No man, Lord. And Jesus said unto her, Neither do I condemn thee; go, and sin no more.

The whole case there recited was remarkable in its incidents; it was, as it were, a transfiguration of Christianity itself—a transfiguration as glorious as that which took place about the same time in the presence of Moses and Elias. For himself, he would rather have been in the pillory than in the position of the last scribe or Pharisee in that presence. That whole case was an exemplification of the meaning and spirit of Christianity. There was no hint there that the party offended might take the law into his own hands, and be the voluntary or involuntary instrument of Divine vengeance. No; it was the genius and spirit of Christianity, stooping, as it were, from heaven, and kissing in peace the erring sister. He did not deny that when the party is caught in the act the law says that it is the greatest provocation a husband can receive; but the same law says that when time for cooling has elapsed it is no provocation at all. There was no pretence for any authority anywhere pretending to allege that it was a justification. Ur questionably it was a grievous provocation; but the solitary question to be determined by his Honor was whether it be a legal provocation; whether such a provocation as will excuse a man for the perpetration of a homicide. It had been stated that there was no instance of a conviction for murder, here or in England, in the case of a husband who had slain the adulterer. He would show that there was, and for that purpose he referred to 3 Jones, N. C. Reports, 24.

Mr. Graham—There the prisoner had made previous threats.

The District Attorney read a statement case, where the Judge ruled that had the prisoner caught the deceased in the act of adultery, the killing would have been manslaughter, but as the killing took place after time to cool, the act was murder, and the prisoner was convicted of murder. In that case exception was taken, and the Court of Appeals affirmed the ruling of the Court below, and held that the acts of adultery did not amount to legal justification. In that case there were peculiar features; the prisoner found his wife in the company of the deceased, going out, for the purpose, as he believed, of adulterous intercourse; fifteen minutes after that the husband, armed with a wooden mallet, went after his wife's paramour and slew him: and notwithstanding that, the Court held that the acts did not amount to a legal provocation. In this case, did the facts amount to a legal provocation? That was the question for his Honor to decide. He held that the facts here offered in evidence did not amount to legal provocation, and consequently that evidence of them was not competent in law. The learned counsel on the other side had asked for the foundation of the rule, as laid down in Manning's case—a very appropriate inquiry. Is its reason that that adultery was committed, or that the fact had a certain effect on the prisoner's mind. The law presumed that the fact would produce a certain effect on the prisoner's mind, and therefore the fact itself might be proved. But whenever the law says that the tempest of passion should not exist after cooling time, then the party should not have the benefit of presumption. It had been asked, what would be the evidence required, in case the rule there laid down had been enacted into a statute, and the Massachusetts authorities had been quoted. They did not, it seemed to him, bear on this case. They were not on the inquiry in point of fact the adultery was committed, but what was the state of the prisoner's mind in consequence of it. It was said that the case in vol. 8 Iredell did not bear on this case, because it was the case of a slave. One of the counsel denied that it was law, while the other admitted tacitly that it was law, but that it ought not to be law.

Mr. Graham—I said that one part of it was obiter, and that the part in regard to insanity conflicted with his Honor's rulings.

The District-Attorney held that that case illustrated what was the state of the law in all cases of homicide on the ground of adultery, whether the parties were bond or free. He referred to Archibald's Criminal Practice, vol. 2, p. 13, and to Hill's South Carolina Reports, vol. 2, p. 116. He contended that the extent of cooling time was necessarily a question of law, and must be determined by his Honor.

Mr. Phillips—That would make the Judge the trier of the whole case.

Mr. Graham—It would be the case of a special verdict. The District-Attorney argued that it was a matter solely for the decision of the Judge. He referred to Archibald's Criminal Practice (235) on the question of cooling time. It was material for his Honor to inquire whether there was cooling time between that hour when his wife's infidelity was communicated to the prisoner and the time when he shot down Key; did it involve such a space of time as that his passion ought to have ceased? That was the material inquiry—not whether the passion actually did cease.

The Judge here intimated to the District-Attorney that it was time to make the announcement now that had been agreed upon—referring to the announcement of the death of the late Chancellor Bibb, who died at Georgetown a day or two since.

The District-Attorney assented, and suspended his argument.

Mr. Brady would ask the District-Attorney to answer this question: If the Judge was to pass on the question of provocation, of justification, and of cooling time, what was the jury to pass upon?

The Judge thought the answer to that question might be deferred for the present.

Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Chancellor Bibb, offered by the District-Attorney, were entered on the minutes.

The Judge pronounced a high eulogy on Chancellor Bibb, and the Court adjourned. Before the adjournment the District-Attorney said that he understood some of the jurors desired the privilege of having some religious books to read to-morrow.

The counsel for the defence had no objection to the jurors having any sort of books they wanted.

The Judge—It is very easy to see that there might be other books foisted on the Jury, and I am anxious to guard against that.

Mr. Selden—As Marshal, and as being somewhat responsible for the character of the documents and books to go to the Jury, I desire to have the particular description settled.

The Judge—Books treating of religious subjects may be given to the Jury, under the direction of the Marshal.

A Juror—I respectfully ask the Court and counsel the privilege of sending to my room for a copy of John Newton's Sermons.

Mr. Magruder, a juror, expressed a wish to have the Bible.

The Judge—I suppose nobody objects to that.

Mr. Magruder—I suppose not.

Mrs. Sickles' Confession—How it was Made and How it was Published.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, April 16, 1859.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In justice to an unfortunate woman, allow me to state that the confession of Mrs. SICKLES, apparently written with a cool and almost heartless deliberation, was indeed the result of a long and severe effort at self-control. She had previously made three several attempts at its composition, and failed through the violence of her emotions. Only by a resolute nerving of herself to the task was she finally successful. Written, too, for her husband's sake, and with a truthful spirit of repentance, she thought of no one and nothing else but her own guilt, which she was willing to put in the darkest hues. Like Adam, she might have said, "I was tempted, and therefore did eat." But she chose to be her own accuser, and thus make no attempt to palliate her own guilt by throwing it upon the author of her ruin. These are facts, and they place her in an attitude of truthful heroism which may claim for her some kind consideration.

The publication of that confession has filled Mr. SICKLES' heart with the most poignant grief. Repeatedly he refused urgent solicitations for a copy of it. While the counsel were pleading for it as evidence, it was laid on the table, and there copied surreptitiously without the knowledge of the defence or their client. Mr. S. heard soon after that it was being reported to New-York, and sent word to the telegraph office for its suppression; but it was too late. Thus the public will exonerate him from an apparent unkindness to his wife, whom he has thus far treated with unparalleled tenderness. CHARITY.

[We publish the above because it comes to us from a gentleman of the highest character, and perfectly conversant with the circumstances of which he writes.—ED. TIMES.]

The Slave-Trade.

SEIZURE OF THE SLAVE BARK E. A. RAWLINS—HER COMING TRIAL.

Through private advices from Apalachicola, we learn that the suspected Slave-bark E. A. Rawlins, recently captured by the United States steamer Vixen, Lieutenant DUER, Commanding, in St. Joseph Bay, has been placed in charge of the United States Marshal at that place, and the second Monday in May appointed as the day upon which to try her case. The crew are still on board, confined as witnesses.

The mates of the Rawlins are held on a suspicion of murder, it appearing that they had a quarrel with the former Captain of the bark, a Spaniard, and during the affray which followed, the latter was killed and thrown overboard; a portion of the murdered man's property was found in possession of the mates. The Captain and supercargo of the vessel escaped to Pensacola when information reached Apalachicola of the seizure, and were subsequently arrested, but in some way made their escape and have not since been heard of.

The Rawlins has long had a suspicious reputation, and was set down as a slaver nearly two years ago. Her superior sailing qualities and other fitting adjuncts for the trade attracted the notice of Mr. CHAS. LAMAR, of Savannah, who purchased her, and it is strongly suspected that she has succeeded in making two or three profitable voyages and escaped detection. The State Department was advised of her character over a year ago, but no steps were taken to prevent her nefarious traffic.

She cleared from Savannah on the 15th of December for Havana, and has been cruising about undetected ever since, only meeting a trifling difficulty on one occasion, in consequence of some irregularity in her papers. She was lying low in St. Joseph Bay, probably waiting for a favorable opportunity to put to sea. Aside from the murder case of the mates, there is said to be evidence enough against the Rawlins to condemn twenty vessels. The Vixen was still at Apalachicola.

The dealings on the Exchange through the week were pretty active, attended by considerable speculative excitement, and a more equal contest than usual of late between the Bull and Bear accounts. The former supported by a fair manifestation of outside orders, and the latter still holding the majority of jobbers inside the Exchange, and in what is called the ante-room. This room the distant reader will understand is made up of amateur speculators, who are not members of the Board, but who rent a common office for their transactions adjoining the Board-room, and employ their Brokers to buy and sell on the fluctuations of the market. It was recently proposed by forty or fifty of the oldest members of the Exchange, embracing a number of the long-established commission firms, to throw open the Stock Exchange dealings to the public; the hall of meeting to be arranged with a lobby, as in the Paris Bourse, from which orders, suggested by the immediate appearance or course of the market, could be handed in to the Brokers. But this movement was met by a counter paper, signed by seventy or eighty members in favor of the old plan of exclusive sessions. A good many of these gentlemen being young members of the Exchange, and speculative jobbers, are presumed to see their advantage in operating upon the market, as influenced by their own printed sales. Others are, for the present, reluctant to trust an experiment in free trade in Stocks, which, without being sure of success, might displace or dispense with some of the salaried officers of the Board, now retained as a necessary part of the formal machinery of the establishment. It is possible that a further change of sentiment may be brought about, to enable the present minority to meet, as they heartily desire to do, the popular preference on the subject.

The daily sales of New-York Central, Pacific Mail, Hudson Preferred and the Western Road stocks, were all quite large. The fluctuations in New-York Central through most of the week were gradually to stiffer prices, and on Friday the demand was free at 77¼@¾ cash, and 77½ buyer 60 days. On Saturday a commission firm sold 1,500 shares, in certificates said to belong to some large estate now in the course of settlement. The sales were made on the first call of the stock at the early Board by another Broker, who on getting through with the lot announced the firm who would make the deliveries. And on the belief that so much fresh stock to come upon the market is to materially affect the price, there was quite a scramble to put out contracts and to sell for cash even, at a lower figure on the second call, and throughout the remainder of the day. The consequence is that the short interest of the Street was increased thousands of shares on the sale of 1,500. The price went from 77⅞ down to 76⅞, and then partially rallied and closed with the stock in demand at 76¼@76⅝. Of this movement the Herald of Sunday remarks:

"The principal event of the day in the stock market was the performance of a very ingenious manœuvre by the Bear party. Some twenty-five hundred shares of Central, cash stock, were obtained by the Bears, and sold, at the morning board, with fine dramatic effect, by two leading brokers. It is said that the performance was quite natural on the part of the actors. The story given out was that the stock had been under hypothecation, which is quite likely. The effect of the sale, to-day, was to check the advancing tendency of the market, which was what the Bears desired. They will discover, in all probability, as soon as they attempt to cover their shorts, that rules of this kind, however effective at first, are apt to recoil with damaging effect."

There may have been a theatrical air in the manner of selling and announcing the principal to the sale of the first and only bona fide parcel, not previously on the Street, of 1,500 shares; but this writer, we are assured, is mistaken in supposing that the firm who made the sale—a house of respectability, but not more influential; if mere effect was to be studied, than forty others in the Street—lent themselves to a dramatic manner to help the Bear account. They are in no wise responsible for the eager s
